Leader's Cabinet To Stay

Planning no More Immediate Changes; To Present Record Budget Tuesday

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader will disclose the financial picture of the last two years of his administration to a joint session of the General Assembly next Tuesday.

The governor told his weekly news conference today that he postponed his budget message to the lawmakers for 24 hours at the request of legislative leaders.

He will preview the budget for Capitol Hill newsmen at a briefing during a luncheon at the Executive Mansion Monday. The governor's fiscal blueprint for the 1957-59 fiscal period is expected to reach a record $2,000,000,000.

Most of the questioning at the conference revolved around the shakeup he has made in governmental posts in the last several weeks, topped by the firing of John R. Torquato as secretary of Labor and Industry. He said he has no plans for further changes at the cabinet level "for the present."

In that connection he scotched reports that Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler might be shifted to another post.

"Recent speculation concerning Lawler has been completely and entirely unfounded," the governor said. "I think he is a very hard working, conscientious and able administrator."

Praise for Gleeson

To a question of whether he held the same opinion of Revenue Secretary Gerald A. Gleeson, the governor replied:

"Gleeson is participating in the strengthening of the Sales Tax Division. He is cooperating and cooperating very well."

The governor also:

1. Said he did not discuss his plan for reorganizing the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission on a non-salaried basis with legislators because he has been informed it would require amending 10 statutes, and must be done so as not to disturb any turnpike indentures. He said while the changes are "by no means impossible, they require very painstaking preparation by the state Justice Department."

2. Discounted reports of wire-tapping of telephones of members of the administration. He said Attorney General Thomas D. McBride has the only wire-tapping equipment and said he has "complete confidence that such equipment could not be in better hands and will not be abused."

3. Declined to comment on a re-

KING SAUD ADDRESSES UN — Saudi Arabia's King Saud gets a cordial greeting from Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold at the United Nations, where he spoke before the General Assembly. The bearded monarch paid high tribute to the principle of freedom for people all over the world. Today (Wednesday) he confers with President Eisenhower in Washington on the Middle East problems.

Dulles Opens Middle East Talks with King

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today sought the support of King Saud of Saudi Arabia in the U. S. drive to keep the Middle East free of Russian penetration.

Dulles took over the delicate diplomacy which President Eisenhower initiated during talks with the visiting Arabian monarch at the White House Wednesday afternoon.

The Secretary of State was scheduled to confer with Saud this morning for an hour or more at Blair House, the presidential guest house where the King is residing during his Washington visit.

Dulles' main hope was that he could convince Saud, an anti-Communist, to stand firm against growing Russian efforts to woo the Middle East and to use his influence with other Arab nations to do likewise.

As the major part of his effort, Dulles hoped to win a statement from Saud acclaiming the Eisenhower Doctrine, as a welcomed offer of U.S. aid and in keeping peace in the Middle East.

The Doctrine declares the United States will use its armed forces if necessary, to combat any overt Communist aggression in the Middle East. It also offers economic and military aid to Middle East nations to help them maintain their independence.

The Doctrine thus far has received a mixed reaction from Arab nations. Avowedly pro-Western nations, such as Turkey and Iran, have welcomed it. Egypt, Syria and Lebanon, which have been dealing on more and more friendly terms with Russia, have been lukewarm.

Aside from his meeting with Dulles, Saud's schedule for the day was devoted to local sightseeing, a lunch given in his honor by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and a dinner tonight given by Dulles.

Leader to Name William L. Batt Labor Secretary

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today announced the appointment of William L. Batt Jr. as new secretary of the state Department of Labor and Industry.

The governor said he would send Batt's nomination to the state Senate on or about March 1.

He said he called in labor leaders Wednesday and informed them of his intention. Asked their reaction, the governor said "Any reaction will have to come from them."

Batt, a Democrat and member of a Philadelphia industrial family is now executive secretary of the Toledo (Ohio) Industrial Development Council, which is designed to create new jobs through industrial expansion in northwestern Ohio.

The governor was asked whether the appointment had the approval of party organization leaders. He said he had discussed it with Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr and added he "did not think the appointment would be obnoxious to the organization."

A native of Cleveland, O. the 40-year-old Batt would succeed John R. Torquato who was fired recently by the governor in a controversy over the handling of a special $1,175,000 fund in the department's Bureau of Employment Security.

The post pays $20,000 a year.

Torquato was ousted following disclosure that some of the 23 employes on the fund's payroll had other jobs. They were suspended by Leader.

Batt, a member of an industrially prominent family in the Quaker City, held various posts in the administration of former President Harry S. Truman. He served on the White House staff as a consultant on labor matters, was a member of the Office of Price Administration and served on the Harriman Lend-Lease Commission.

His father was long associated with SKF Industries in Philadelphia.

Leechburg Woman Is Fatal Beating Victim

LEECHBURG, Pa. (UP)— A murderous assailant waylaid a pregnant, young housewife, split her skull with a blunt weapon, and left her dying in an alleyway outside the doorway to her apartment home Wednesday night.

The victim, Mrs. Emily Shupe Foster, 25, died at about midnight, shortly after her husband, Elman, 30, found her lying unconscious in the alley following the savage attack.

A night-long investigation turned up no suspects. The fact her pocketbook was missing led police to consider a theory she was slain in a robbery attempt although the purse contained little money. What cash she carried consisted mostly of about $1.50 she had won at a bingo party earlier in the evening.

An autopsy showed that Mrs. Foster's skull had been split over each ear from hard-swung blows which caused her death. The top of her head also was gashed and battered.

Police and 50 volunteer firemen searched all morning without success for the missing purse and other leads to the identity of the killer.

The Fosters lived in a second floor apartment above a garage. They were childless but Mrs. Foster was expecting a baby sometime this summer.

Neighbors heard her arrive home in the family car and shut the garage doors. The entrance to the apartment fronted on the alleyway by the garage.

Armstrong County Coroner Charles M. Woodward said Mrs. Foster, 25, apparently had been slugged with a "heavy instrument" which inflicted four head wounds. Dr. Edmund Kielman, the county pathologist, performed an

Firing of McSorley Defied; To Attend Turnpike Meetings

HARRISBURG (UP)—Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission Chairman G. Franklin McSorley today defied his suspension by Gov. George M. Leader on the ground it was "without legal effect."

Meanwhile, District Attorney Huette F. Dowling prepared to go into Dauphin County Court this morning to ask bench warrants for the arrests of McSorley and 22 others indicted by a grand jury in an investigation of turnpike affairs.

Attorneys were advised to be in court to post bonds for their clients.

Twenty-two of the defendants were accused of criminal conspiracy in an alleged plot to swindle some $19,500,000 of turnpike funds through contracts for mine filling under the Northeastern Extension. They included Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale Republican, former commission chairman, and Republican Commissioner James F. Torrance of Export, also suspended by Leader.

McSorley, a Pittsburgh Democrat and a Leader appointee, was cited for misconduct in office for allegedly supplying a commission employe to chauffeur Evans after Evans left the agency. McSorley and Torrance plan to appeal their suspensions in the courts.

McSorley, in a telegram to other members of the Commission Wednesday night, said he would "continue to exercise my duties as a member and chairman. . . and will attend the next meeting of the commission scheduled for Feb. 13."

The governor's suspension order, imposed pending disposition of the indictments, was effective at the close of business Wednesday.

Available For Meetings

McSorley also said that although he is out of town with his family he will be "available for meetings upon your notice in accordance with the rules of the commission."

The statement was released by Samuel A. Schreckengaust, of the Harrisburg law firm representing McSorley. It was addressed to Commissioners Joseph J. Lawler, John F. Byrne and Merritt A. Williamson, who took his oath Wednesday to fill a vacancy.

Torrance reiterated his intention to appeal to the courts "to protect my right to fulfill my responsibilities."

"I do not feel that I have either morally or legally done anything that is wrong and it is my belief that the suspension order of the governor is illegal," Torrance said.

Also indicted on conspiracy charges were Charles W. Stickler, Jr., president of the Manu-

Calls on Congress to Liberalize Immigration Laws; Outlines Steps

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today for new immigration legislation that would grant a haven in the United States to persons who "flee from Communist persecution and tyranny."

In a special message to Congress, the President also requested liberalization of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, basic immigration law of the land.

At the outset of his message the President outlined the need for emergency legislation to help Hungarian and other refugees.

He said the eyes of the world have been fixed on Hungary where thousands of men, women and children have fled to seek asylum abroad.

"Our position of world leadership demands that, in partnership with other nations of the free world, we be in a position to grant that asylum," Mr. Eisenhower said.

He called for two basic steps to help anyone—not Hungarians alone—fleeing from Communism:

Outlines Two Points

"First, I recommend that the Congress enact legislation giving the President power to authorize the attorney general to parole into the United States temporarily under such conditions as he may prescribe escapees, selected by the secretary of state, who have fled or in the future flee from Communist persecution and tyranny," the President said.

He said the number who should be granted temporary admission on a parole basis in any one year should not exceed the average of aliens who have been permitted to enter the country over the past eight years by special acts of Congress outside the basic immigration system.

"Second, I urge the Congress promptly to enact legislation giving the necessary discretionary power to the attorney general to permit aliens paroled into the United States, who intend to stay here, to remain as permanent residents," he said.

The President said this legislation "would effectively solve the problem of the Hungarian escapees who have already arrived." Furthermore, he said, it would provide "a means for coping with the cases of certain Korean orphans, adopted children and other aliens who have been granted emergency admission to this country and now remain here in an indefinite status."

The President said this type of legislation should be permanent "so that administrative authorities are in a position to act promptly and with assurance in facing emergencies which may arise in the future."

Dial Phone Service Is Interrupted Here

Telephone service from and into Monessen was cut-off almost entirely between 9:30 and 10:10 this morning.

J. Lawrence Buchanan, district manager of Bell Telephone Co., said "unusual equipment difficulty" caused the Monessen dial office to go out of service at 9:30.

He said he is unable to give a fuller explanation until a full investigation is made.

He said it was the first time such a mechanical difficulty had been encountered in the type of dial system used in Monessen. He also said it was the first major trouble since the dial system was installed here last October.

He stated that as soon as his office was notified of the disruption of service, all emergency procedures went into action. Essential services, such as the police and fire departments, were immediately switched over to manual operations and their calls were channeled through the Charleroi office.

Six mobile telephone units from the Pittsburgh and McKeesport districts were alerted and moved into Monessen to handle as many outgoing calls as possible.

During the cut-off, he said no calls could be made through the dial system from Monessen and no calls could get through to Monessen. Calls that did get through were handled by an operator through the mobile units.

The dial system office at Sixth street and Reed avenue was a busy place when the cut-off started. Workmen scurried about inspecting almost every wire in an attempt to find the cause of the failure.

Buchanan did not disclose how the dial system began operating again.

After the system started work-

Seeks Damages From Accident

The two-vehicle accident occurred on the Brownsville-Braznell road.

Many Advances Are Reported in Medicine

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Scientists, pharmacists, even electrical engineers are contributing to advances in the medical field

This month's report deals with accomplishments of all three, with a new type of aspirin, a new epileptic drug and a new type of telephone.

The new pharmaceutical development permits victims of arthritis and other conditions to take large and effective doses of aspirin without at times suffering gastric upset.

We have long recognized aspirin as effective therapy in rheumatic diseases, but the stomach distress it sometimes causes in large doses has limited its use among many patients.

Application of a new coating — Duentric — to aspirin now enables the tablets to pass intact through the stomach, yet disintegrate quickly in the small intestine. This allows the medicine to be absorbed into the blood stream without touching the sensitive stomach lining.

An anticonvulsant drug, Phelantin, is reported to have given complete freedom from seizures to more than half of a group of 95 epileptic patients in a clinical test in Boston, Massachusetts

Forty-eight of the patients given the drug reportedly received total relief.

Many of those who reported the drug only partially effective said they still felt better, more alert and slept more restfully while taking Phelantin.

The new type telephone will benefit those who are hard of hearing. By using transistors instead of bulkier vacuum tubes to provide amplification, the Automatic Electric Company has developed a special phone about the same size and weight as an ordinary instrument.

In fact, the transistized amplification assembly fits right into the housing of a conventional telephone. A small control knob at the back of the set permits the user to adjust the volume to his needs.

Edgar Bergen Tells All About Latest Addition

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Edgar Bergen says the latest addition to his family of woodenheads had its beginning in a small carved figure, which his wife, Frances, bought in a New York store several years ago.

The figure was that of a small hobo. Burgen was so smitten by the little guy that he spent considerable time tracking down the carver who made the original. After he had been located, he turned out and painted a dummy head for the ventriloquist which was similar to that of the smaller figure

"He'll be no ordinary tramp but a snobbish sort of fellow." Bergen said. "He'll winter in Florida. He'll coosider himself rather grand. Oh, there'll be a few protruding veins — from over-indulgence — but he'll be a happy soul with no worries."

The actual public introduction of the little tramp will be on Bergen's CBS-TV show, "Do You Trust Your Wife?" He also may then introduce a fifth character to add to Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, Effie Klinker and the tramp. This will be a Swedish sea captain who has been in and out of Bergen's mind for years and years.

Bergen hopes his new additions will go over. If they do, credit will go to his wife for the tramp and to him for the captain.

"It's nice that the idea suggested by Frances will be presented on one certain show," he pointed out. "You bet I trust my wife's judgment."

Prison Revolt Crushed in Sicily

900 Take Part in Uprising

PALERMO, Sicily (UP)—Three battalions of police and troops stormed the fortress-like Ucciardone prison today under cover of machine gun fire and tear gas and crushed a 19-hour revolt by 900 convicts.

One prisoner was killed and at least 15 rebels and policemen wounded in the siege and assault.

Most of the rebel convicts surrendered shortly before noon. But a small group of die-hard insurgents was reported still holding out in one part of the prison at 2 p.m. There was no immediate word on the fate of three prison guards seized as hostages by the rebels.

Police and army forces moved in after 69-year-old Ernest Cardinal Ruffini entered the prison courtyard in a personal attempt to persuade the inmates to surrender. They refused and the prelate withdrew.

The prison then was stormed on three wings where rebels had barricaded themselves on the roof.

Army Stands By

Police and soldiers used ladders to scale the walls while screaming prisoners hurled broken tables and chairs and refuse on them from the ramparts.

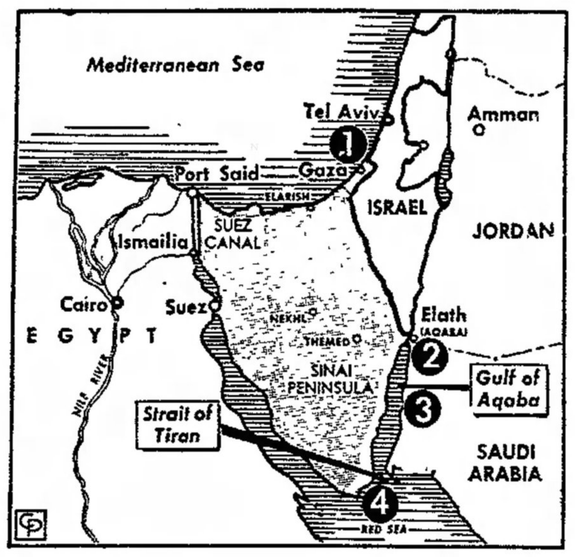
Battalions of riot police and carabinieri (federal police), with a dozen armored cars and about 30 machine guns, took part in the battle against the tile - throwing rebels.

Part of an army regiment stood by with their rifles trained on the prison from windows of houses across the street.

Some 300 criminals formed the hard core of the revolt, with 600 others limiting their activity to passive resistance.

The revolt began Wednesday night when 100 criminals refused to return to their cells at end of the afternoon exercise period and began climbing onto ledges and window sills.

Authorities said the revolt apparently was master - minded by elements of the notorious Sicilian Mafia whose dread "black hand" sign is known throughout the world.



HERE'S UN'S ISRAELI TASK — Map illustrates the United Nations' problem with Israel and Egypt: The Israelis hold the Gaza strip (1), which they refuse to leave until assured Egypt will not be able to use it as a commando base again; the Israelis also demand assurance that Egypt will not be able to bottle up the port of Elath (2), by closing the Gulf of Aqaba (3). The UN may have to use sea duty forces inside the Strait of Tiran (4) to keep the gulf open. Meanwhile, Israel holds a strip along the west coast of the gulf to protect the region. Egypt demands evacuation of all the Israeli forces.

Israel Won't Give Back Gaza Strip

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—Israel gave new indications today it would refuse to turn the Gaza Strip back to Egypt despite United Nations prodding.

A United Press dispatch from Jerusalem said Israel had worked out a new irrigation scheme for Gaza and was planning to set up power plants, waterworks and a nurses' school at the port of Gaza.

At the same time Israeli military authorities reported they were shocked and gravely worried over the revival of fedayeen (guerrilla) activities from the Sinai peninsula as the Israeli troops withdraw.

Patrol Car Destroyed

The authorities said an Israeli patrol car was bown up Wednesday near Rafah by a mine laid by Fedayeens and that three Yugoslav members of the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) were hurt in a similar incident recently.

The Western powers at the United Nations conferred privately again on a "middle of the road" resolution demanding Israel get completely out of Egypt and hoped to bring it to a vote by Saturday.

The United Nations General Assembly scheduled no meetings today on the Middle East, Largely because of the behind-the-scenes maneuvers in which the United States and Canada were leading the way.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban was active too and held separate meetings Wednesday with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau.

It was believed the proposed Western resolution would be published tonight or early Friday and that debate on it could be held Friday and Saturday.

Observers believed there would be two resolutions, one demanding Israel give up all territory it won in the recent invasion and one asking the UNEF to patro. the 1949 demarcation boundaries and take over administration of the Gaza Strip.

McDonald Calls for Showdown on Feud

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—Bitter factionalism among trades and industrial unions hung over the winter conference of the huge combined AFL-CIO today as United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald called for a showdown on a family feud.

McDonald has summoned top executives of his union to take up the Steelworkers dispute with the Sheet Metal Workers Union which has refused to install equipment made by Steelworkers.

A spokesman said McDonald wanted immediate action on the case from the AFL-CIO Executive Council and union President George Meany.

The quarrel between the two unions had its roots in the period before the two big unions combined. Then the Steelworkers belonged to the CIO and the Sheet Metal Workers of the AFL.

Since the merger, most of the old AFL unions have gone into the Building Trades Department of the AFL-CIO while the majority of the former CIO unions went into the Industrial Union Department.

McDonald, in a letter to Meany last fall, charged the Sheet Metal Workers "deliberately, knowingly and with malice aforethought" violated AFL-CIO laws by allegedly boycotting projects involving Steelworkers.

Meany conferred Wednesday with Richard Gray, head of the Building Trades Department, and Al Whitehouse, director of the Industrial Union Division, but refused to make any statement. It was reported that the discussion was mainly concerned with ways and means of bringing about permanent peace between the two factions.

Church Leader Predicts More Racial Problems

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UP) — An official of the National Lutheran Council predicted today racial tensions will "heighten" during 1957 and bring a "showdown" between federal and state authorities over segregation in public schools.

Dr. Robert E. Van Deusen told the delegates to the NLC's 39th annual meeting here that "this year may prove to be the high water mark in bitterness and violence on the one hand and the establishment of the supremacy of federal authority over state control on the other."

Dr. Van Deusen, secretary of the Washington, D.C., office of the NLC's division of public relations, added that "as disregard for law and order breaks out in more and more places, the need for effective federal intervention at crucial points will become apparent."

"By painful degrees, it will be established that the United States is a nation rather than a federation of autonomous states," he added.

He also forecast that the year will bring "belated progress" toward racial integration in church life.

Bethlehem Steel To Make Report On 1956 Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Bethlehem Steel Corp., world's second largest steel producer, tells today how it fared during 1956. Its report follows glowing pronouncements by the first and third ranked steelmakers.

Last Tuesday first-seeded U.S. Steel Corp. reported the greatest fourth quarter in its history. For the full year sales set a new record but net income and production dropped below record 1955 as a result of the 34-day strike last summer. At the same time directors boosted the quarterly dividend 10 cents to 75 cents a share.

Republic Steel Corp. reported record sales and earnings for 1956 and announced it will spend $50 million more on capital expenditures this year, bringing the amount to $150 million.

Republic's net income for 1956 climbed to $90,406,665, equal to $5.83 a common share from $86,271,491 or $5.59 per share in 1955. Sales rose to $1,244,214,346 from $1,188,559,765.

King's Son to Get Paralytic Treatment

WASHINGTON (P) — King Saud's partly-crippled little son undergoes examination of his paralytic ailment at Walter Reed Hospital today. President Eisenhower personally ordered the Army's vast medical facility be put at the child's disposal.

The President instructed his physician Major Gen Howard Mc C. Snyder, to arrange the examination shortly after he greeted the 3½-year-old boy Wednesday.

NO COAT TALES — Thomas DiGiacomo, Paterson, N. J., presented this chin-resting aspect at the Senate investigations subcommittee's hearing in Washington as Senator John McClellan (D), Arkansas, declared DiGiacomo and his associate, Jack Rogers, were "not the right kind of characters for the government to deal with." DiGiacomo had refused to state whether he was paying government employes to get contracts with the Defense department. He and Rogers are clothing manufacturers.

Rarick Backer Pulls Support In USW Race

DETROIT (UP)—The local leader of the rebel group of United Steelworkers union which is trying to oust David J. McDonald as international union president has switched his position.

William R. Smiddy, a member of USW Local 1299, which represents workers at Great Lakes Steel Co. in downriver Ecorse, said he no longer is backing Donald Rarick of Pennsylvania for the presidency.

Rarick was backed for the presidency in the anti-McDonald move after the international announced several months ago the dues would be boosted from $3 a month to $5.

"A more thorough investigation of the type of platform that Rarick is using to win the election shows that it tends to weaken the union," Smiddy said.

It was a bad blow for the Rarick forces, since Rarick is speaking in Ecorse tonight. Local 1299 has already authorized the dues increase, and its president, Wallace Bodrie, said he would be at the meeting to ask Rarick "a lot of questions."

USW Ballot Hearing Enters Final Stages

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A hearing that will decide whether Pittsburgh millhand Frank W. O'Brien will be a district candidate in next month's United Steelworkers Union election entered its final stages today in common pleas court.

O'Brien a Dues Protest Committee aspirant for director of the USW's District 16 has charged union leaders "wilfully conspired" to keep his name off the Feb. 12 ballot.

Center of the dispute are three union locals which O'Brien claims endorsed him as opponent to veteran District 16 Director John Murray. The international union already has conceded that O'Brien had the backing of four of the seven locals he claimed earlier.

Endorsement by at least five locals is required to become a certified candidate for a SW directorship.

O'Brien already has concluded his case before Judge Henry X. O'Brien. The judge and plaintiff are not related.

J. Alfred Wilner, counsel for the international union, began arguments yesterday to prove O'Brien did not receive the required number of endorsements for nomination.

U. S. Help In Coal Exporting

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. government has promised to support U.S. coal producers' efforts to ship more coal to Europe to help meet the fuel crisis there caused by the closing of the Suez Canal.

Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization (ODM) released the text of a letter assuring the Southern Coal Producers' Association that the government would "do all we can" to help producers transport coal to Europe.

European industry has long urged thats hipments of U. S. coal to the continent be stepped up. The chief obstacles have been lack of shipping space and high shipping costs.

U.S. producers teamed with the United Mine Workers (UMW) union last year to form the American Coal Shipping Corporation. The firm subsequently applied to the Federal Maritime Administration for permission to lease 30 Liberty ships for use as coal transports. This permission was granted and the ships are now being reconditioned in U.S. yards. Officials said the ships should be ready by spring.

Flemming in his letter to the president of the Southern Coal Producers' Association recalled that the Maritime Administration had made available for charter an additional 50 vessels Jan. 14.

He said he was "pleased" by an upward trend in coal exports. But he warned that Europe's current fuel shortage could not be met by greater coal shipments alone. More oil would have to be sent to Europe to meet the current crisis, he said.

Britain, Jordan To Begin Talks Monday on Treaty

LONDON (UP)— The Foreign Office announced today that Britain and Jordan will begin negotiations Monday in Amman for termination of the Anglo-Jordan treaty under which British forces are stationed in Jordan.

The Foreign Office announcement said Britain "agreed to the proposal by the Jordan government that negotiations for the termination of the Anglo-Jordan treaty of 1948 should begin in Amman on Feb. 4."

The negotiations will include the withdrawal of some 2,000 British forces from Jordan and the termination of use of British air bases on Jordan territory, officials said.

Ending the treaty would mean an end of Britain's annual subsidy of $35 million to assist Jordan's economy and defense budget Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria agreed two weeks ago to replace the British aid.

GSA Would Get More Borrowing

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General State Authority would have its borrowing power increased by more than $90,000,000 and be allowed to finance housing projects under the provision of a new House bill.

The proposal, sponsored by Reps. Herbert Fineman and Eugene Geffland, Philadelphia Democrats, would hike the authority borrowing power to $520,000,000. Under present law the agency is prevented from financing housing projects.

autopsy to determine the exact cause of death.

Police Capt. Ivan L. Mateer said Mrs. Foster was attacked as she arrived home from a bingo game where she had won $1.50 earlier in the evening. Her husband, Elman, 30, found her unconscious outside their small apartment at about 11 p.m. when he returned home from bowling. He called an ambulance and police but she had died before doctors arrived.

Authorities first considered the possibility Mrs. Foster had slipped on an icy patch in the alley after putting away her automobile in the garage beneath the second floor apartment. But later authorities said there "is one thing certain—she was hit on the head several times with a blunt object."

"We are investigating on the assumption foul play was involved," Mateer said. "Her purse was missing and she had a cut on her head. We are not definitely saying it is a case of murder until a post mortem is performed."

Mateer said Mrs. Foster's body was lying near a patch of ice. Blood from her head wound also was found in the ice-spotted alley.

"The husband told us he called a Pittsburgh hospital after he found his wife unconscious. Then he telephoned us," Mateer said. "We used an inhalator on her but she was dead when we arrived."

The police captain said Foster, a payroll clerk at the West Leechburg plant of Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., spent the evening in downtown Leechburg while his wife played bingo at Vandergrift with his parents.

"The absence of her purse presents the possibility of foul play. We will ask our volunteer fire department to search the community today in hopes of finding the purse," Mateer said.

He said the woman died only a short time after parking her car in a garage beneath the couple's apartment.

$200,000 Damage

DAYTON, Ohio (P)—Damage was estimated at nearly $200,000 today from a fire that destroyed the St. John Transportation Co. garage here Wednesday night.

Fight for Power in Hungary not Over

VIENNA (UP)— Puppet Premier Janos Kadar admitted widespread anti-Communist hostility among Hungarians today and warned the "fight for power" in the East European satellite is not yet over.

Western observers feared Kadar's remarks indicated a further tightening of the Communist yoke on Hungary and the possible acceleration of the terror practices on the Red police-state.

Budapest radio broadcast excerpts of a speech made by Kadar at a meeting of the Hungarian Socialist (Communist) Workers Party organization in a district of Budapest.

The Premier, who was forced on the Hungarian people by Soviet guns, said the October freedom-from-Moscow uprising was a "fight for power in Hungary which still goes on."

"Our main task is to strengthen the unity of the working class," he said. "Therefore we must cooperate with the former Social Democrats, and establish, together with them, a united workers front," Kadar said.

Kadar said the Stalinist regime of Matyas Rakosi made "many mistakes." But he urged Hungarians not to listen to the "enemy who is trying to make them bigger than they were."

Observers here said Kadar's speech was an open admission of Communist weakness in Hungary. They said Kadar practically announced the failure of his campaign to establish a strong new Communist Party to replace the organization virtually wiped out during the revolt

11 Dead in Kentucky Floodlands

Ike Orders Federal Aid to Help Suffering in Kentucky

By UNITED PRESS

President Eisenhower declared Kentucky floodlands a major disaster area today as the death toll mounted to at least 11 in a four-state area where more rain, cold and snow added to the miseries of thousands left homeless.

The Chief Executive ordered federal aid to help the suffering in Kentucky, one of the hardest hit states. West Virginia has made a similar appeal.

Virginia and Tennessee also were hard hit by days of rain that turned placid mountain streams into raging torrents that pounded into one town after another.

Several towns were isolated and not even helicopters could land with desperately-needed food and medicine. Damage soared to an estimated $15 million.

Chandler Makes Appeal

The President acted in response to an appeal by Kentucky Gov. A. B. Chandler who said a large part of eastern Kentucky have been inundated by the worst floods in state history.

The White House said that so far there has been no official request for aid from the governors of Virginia, Tennessee and West Virginia.

The Army, the National Guard, Red Cross and civilian volunteers worked together against the natural barriers of water, mountains, and mud to try to move food and medical supplies into the stricken regions.

Cold, rain and snow were predicted for Kentucky, Virginia, and West Virginia. The Weather Bureau forecast cold and more rain for eastern Tennessee, where TVA installations have held the flood waters partly in check.

At Hazard, Ky., stores, business houses and industries were shut down because of lack of fuel and power. Mud clogged the streets and oozed into some downtown stores. Residents of the town searched for dry firewood to heat their chilly homes.

Army Engineers Arrive

A contingent of Army engineers from Fort Knox, Ky., reached Hazard with a portable electric generator for the United Mine Workers hospital, relieving nurses who have been using hot water bottles to keep premature babies alive.

The governors of West Virginia and Kentucky appealed to President Eisenhower for federal assistance. Gov. Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia said the situation was critical and that hardship and suffering was "severe."

At least 1,000 persons were forced to flee their homes in and around Williamson and Logan, W. Va. Contaminated water supplies in both communities created a health hazard, but a water purifier flown into Logan late Wednesday brought some relief.

Pikeville, Ky., a city of 5,500 isolated for two days, received desperately-needed supplies early today from National Guard convoys from London and Ashland. But the city still needed more.

Water was receding in some of the stricken areas but that only eased the situation. More heavy rains in some of the backwoods mountain communities around the Cumberland River kept waters near all-time high marks.

Grundy, Va., a town of 2,000, appealed by radio for help Wednesday night but there was no further word by mid-morning from that community. Appeals went out for food, clothing, drinking water and medicine, but rain and fog grounded the helicopters that could carry in the badly-sought supplies.

Davis Taylor, manager of radio station WRIC at Richland, Va. relayed the pleas from Grundy, interrupting regular programs for urgent messages.

"Grundy has about 100 homes destroyed," Taylor said. "Eighteen cars were washed away."

Turncoat Wants To Come Home, Wife Is Problem

HONG KONG (UP)— American turncoat Samuel Hawkins who wants to leave Communist China of what to do with his Russian still is trying to solve the problem wife, diplomatic sources reported today.

They said Hawkins of Oklahoma City, Okla., still is in Peiping where he has been in contact with the British Embassy.

Hawkins, one of 14 turncoats still on the mainland, married his White Russian wife in China. He apparently now has permission of the Chinese Reds to leave.

But he can not get his wife into Hong Kong unless the United States State Department agrees to let her accompany Hawkins to the United States. Otherwise the British here will not let her enter because presumably she has no valid travel documents and would not be able to obtain a visa to any country other than the United States.

Hawkins himself would be admitted into Hong Kong conditionally since he must prove to the satisfaction of the U. S. consulate here that he has done nothing to forfeit his citizenship while in Communist China.

It had been rumored earlier that Hawkins would arrive here this week. The speculation was heightened Wednesday when the Hong Kong government received a tip that two Americans would reach the border in the afternoon. But no Americans appeared.

Supreme Court Judge Stanley Reed to Quit

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House today announced the retirement of Supreme Court ustice Stanley Reed, effective Feb 25.

Reed, a Democrat, has served on the nation's highest tribunal for 19 years.

He notified the President of his retirement in a hand written letter dated today. In the letter Reed pointed out that today marked the end of 19 years continuous service on the court. He said that having reached the age of 72 he wanted to retire on Feb. 25.

Mrs. Eisenhower approved the retirement and sent Reed a personal note of congratulations on his "long and splendid record in public service."

Reed's departure from the court will give Mr. Eisenhower the opportunity to make his fourth appointment to the high tribunal. Previously, he name dChief Justice Earl Warren and Associate Justices John M. Harlan and William Joseph rennan Jr.

Reed, tall, scholarly former solicitor general, was named to the court by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Thejurist apparently advised Mr. Eisenhower at the Supreme Court dinner at the White House Tuesday night of his intention to retire. But his actual letter was dated today.

It said:

"By Jan. 31, 1957, I will have served 19 continuous years as an served 19 continuous years as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Being now 72 years of age I desire on Feb. 25, 1957, to retire from regular active service as a justice of the United States, retaining my office as such in accordance with the provision of Title 28, Section 371 (b) of the U.S. code."

The code section to which he referred permits him to retire on full pay. But he will be subject to call for special judicial duty at the determination of the Chief Justice.

Rate Increase Is Suspended

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission has suspended until Aug. 1 an estimated $31,400 annual rate increase sought by the Waynesburg Water Co.

The increase, originally filed to become effective Feb. 1, would affect some 2,200 consumers in the Waynesburg area of Greene County, raising all but public fire protection rates 35 per cent.

The commission said it will hold an inquiry into the justifications for the rate hike, which is being protested by about 200 consumers and Waynesburg Borough.

The firm said the additional revenue was needed to meet higher operating costs and to make "substantial plant improvements."

Trapped for Hours Atop Smokestack

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP)— George Hill, 38, of Altasburg, Washington County, Pa., was one of five construction workers trapped for two hours Wednesday atop a 270-foot smokestack.

The men, employed by the Rust Engineering Co. of Pittsburgh, were marooned on the stack at a suburban station of Niagara Mohawk Corp. when an elevator broke

They were lowered to safety in a hastily-rigged boatswain's chair.

Lawyers Want Change In Negligence Laws

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pennsylvania attorneys have voted against a proposal to change a civil negligence law under which claims for personal injury and property damage are settled.

Voting 114-74 attorneys attending the Pennsylvania Bar Association convention rejected a proposal to substitute the doctrine of "comparative negligence" for the present rule that proof of a plaintiff's contributary negligence in an accident bars him from collecting any damages.

Against Society's Wishes

Attorney Lawrence H. Eldredge of Philadelphia was a leading exponent of the comparative negligence proposal which holds, for example, that where two motorists are at fault in a collision they should share the damages in proportion to their respective blame. Eldredge argued that the present law is against the wishes of society and declared juries often ignore it in order to give damages to the person receiving heavy losses.

Reading attorney Ralph C. Bode was a principal speaker against the proposed change, declaring that comparative negligence is opposed to American ideas of individual responsibility and would lead to fixing "liability without fault."

Generally, opponents of the new doctrine contended such a system for dividing fault between litigants would be too complex for juries.

The pros and cons of comparative negligence were argued at length Wednesday afternoon.

Deplores Jury Attacks

David F. Maxwell, president of the American Bar Association, in in a keynote banquet address Wednesday night, deplored what he described as a "nationwide attack on the jury trial system in civil cases."

Maxwell, a Philadelphia attorney, declared he did not "believe it is necessary to eliminate trial by jury in order to speed up the administration of justice." He said his reports indicate the problem of clogged dockets is acute only in certain large cities and these situations could be remedied by extension of the pre-trial conference system and reorganization of courts on a more business-like basis.

He urged the Pennsylvania Supreme court to provide for a study of Pennsylvania courts with the view of a possible reorganization of the entire system.

An estimated 800 attorneys are attending the four-day 61st annual meeting of the state bar.

Oakmont Man Dead in Crash

BUTLER, Pa. (UP)—Donald W. Copley, 26, of 675 Fifth St., Oakmont, near Pittsburgh, was killed late Wednesday when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a guard rail and a bridge on Route 108, three miles west of Slippery Rock.

The driver, Donald Balson, 26, of Pittsburgh, was hurt slightly. The men, students at Slippery Rock State Teachers College, were enroute from New Castle to the college.

State police said Balson lost control of the car when he swerved to avoid colliding with another auto. Copley was thrown from the car in the crash.

Two Sentenced to Terms in Jail

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP)—Harold Rizor, 33, Washington, Pa., and Charles E. Wolfe, 19, Claysville, Pa., were sentenced to jail Wednesday on three counts of burglary and one of armed robbery.

Just What Can You Deduct When Making Tax Returns?

(Fourth of a series)

By RUSSELL C. HARRINGTON
Commissioner of Internal Revenue

WASHINGTON (UP) — May a taxpayer deduct from his income the $5 he gave to Hungarian refugee relief? May he deduct a political contribution?

Those are two of the kind of special questions which are popping up this year. Last year, people were asking about deductions for hurricane and flood damage. Every year we are asked about deductions for medical expenses for payments to a nursery school for taking care of the youngster while mother works, and for interest payments on installment buying.

As the law allows you certain tax-free $600 exemptions for yourself and your dependents (see yesterday's article), so it allows you certain amounts for such things as contributions, interest payments, state and local taxes, medical expenses, child care, some losses—even if you had none of them during the year.

In claiming the deduction, you deduct a certain amount from your income, thereby reducing the amount which is taxed.

Standard Deduction

Everyone is entitled to at least the standard deduction, which allows you approximately 10 per cent of your income for deductible outlays, even if you spent less than that or nothing at all. If you claim the standard deduction, you cannot claim it for more than $1,000. In most cases it comes to less than that.

Taxpayers who file their return on the card form 1040A and those who figure their tax from the tax table in the official instructions take the standard deduction. It is automatically calculated in the tax these people owe.

Taxpayers who compute their own tax may take either a standard or an itemized deduction.

If your contributions and other deductible expenses come to more than the standard deduction allows, your best bet may be to list them all, in the spaces provided on Page 2 of Form 1040. Listing each deduction item-by-item removes you from the percentage and dollar limits of the standard deduction.

The rest of this article is devoted to deductions which may be claimed if you itemize your deductions. It may be worth your while to add up your deductible outlays on a separate sheet first, to see if they give you a bigger deduction than the standard allowance.

Contributions are deductible if they go to religious, charitable, educational, scientific or literary organizations, so long as the organization is not operated for personal profit and does not carry on propaganda or try to influence legislation.

Contributions Are Deductible

This means contributions to qualified Hungarian relief groups, such as the American Red Cross and others, are deductible.

Contributions to the 1956 election campaign, to candidates or parties, are not deductible.

Child care—you are not permitted to deduct for baby sitter fees when you go to the movies. Deductions for child care are designed primarily for mothers who are working or actively looking for work, or for a man who is divorced or legally separated or a widower.

Women and these eligible men may deduct up to $600 a year, if it costs that much to have someone look after the child while they are at work or seeking work. The child must be the taxpayer's own child, stepchild or legally adopted child under 12 or any other dependent who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself. Regardless of the number of children being cared for, the taxpayer may not deduct more than $600, and may not deduct that much if the care actually costs less.

A working wife may claim the deduction only if she files a joint return with her husband. If their combined income is more than $4,500 the deduction they may claim is reduced by the amount of any income over $4,500. For example, if their income was $4,600 ($100 higher than $4,500) and their child care costs were $400, they could deduct only $300 ($100 less than $400).

You may not deduct amounts paid to one of your children to take care of another, or paid to some other dependent to care for your child. If you have a maid or housekeeper who looks after the child and also does something like cooking, cleaning or laundering, you may deduct only that part of her pay which represents the time she spends caring for the child.

Medical Expenses

Medical expenses — basically, you are allowed to deduct medical and dental expenses if they run higher than three per cent of your income. You do not deduct that first three per cent portion, but you do deduct the amount above that. If you are 65 or older, you may deduct all your own medical expenses.

Tomorrow? Deductions for sickness or injury; tax benefits for persons with pensions or annuities.

Soft Coal Mining Industry Has Changed

The bituminous coal mining industry in Pennsylvania has undergone marked changes in character during recent years, explains Dr. Phyllis R. Griess, assistant professor of geography at the Pennsylvania State University.

"Because these changes have not been uniform throughout the coal field, what was formerly an homogeneous mining region has now become two regions, each with distinctive characteristics," Dr. Griess says.

The southern area is experiencing a marked decline in production. Coal in this section still is derived chiefly from large-scale underground mines. Output per miner is low, wages are high, but work-years are short, accidents are relatively frequent, and railroads are employed to transport the bulk of the coal.

"In short," says Dr. Griess, "the southern area retains the characteristics of the coal mining industry of pre-World War II days."

In contrast, the northern area constitutes what might be called the "dynamic bituminous coal mining region." In this section, production is either increasing or suffering only a modest decline, mining has shifted significantly from underground operations to more lucrative strip mining, tonnage production per man-day is high, mining costs are low, wages are relatively low, but underemployment is not serious, major accidents are rare, and trucks are replacing railroads as conveyors of coal.

"Consequently, the northern region unlike the southern section bears little resemblance to the industry as it existed prior to the last war," Dr. Griess says.

Production of Steel Picks Up Last Week

NEW YORK (UP)—Steel production throughout the nation picked up a bit last week and schedules this week are higher still, according to the weekly report of American Iron & Steel Institute.

The nation's mills expect this week to operate at 97.1 per cent of capacity, turning out 2,485,000 tons of steel, or 154 7 per cent of 1947-1949 average output.

Actual operations last week were at 96.6 per cent for 2,472,000 tons of a production index of 153 9. This was below output of 2,496,000 tons which had been anticipated but above actual production of 2,467,000 tons the week before.

A month ago mills operated at 97 3 per cent for 2,490,000 tons an index of 155 0 and a year ago at 99 3 per cent for 2,444,000 tons and a 152.1 index.

Steel Pessimists 'Pulling in Horns', Magazine Says

NEW YORK (UP)—Pessimists in the steel market are "pulling in their horns a little," Iron Age said today.

This about face—coupled with "restrained optimism in important quarters"—puts the steel outlook in "a more encouraging light," the authoritative trade publication reported.

Iron Age said continued lighter demand from auto makers and weakness in steel scrap prices portend an easier second quarter.

But it was quick to point out that automotive inventory cutbacks may be over by March. "Detroit steel stocks are approaching the stage where further cuts might be dangerous," it said.

At the same time it said the soft tone of cold-rolled sheets—principal auto product—is giving a break to users of light plates. Hot rolled sheet users also are picking up extra tonnages, it noted.

Iron Age said the shift in flat-rolled from a seller's to a buyer's market is giving little comfort to users of plate and structurals.

New York State to Hit Air Pollution

THE STATE of New York seems likely, as a result of action by its legislature now in session in Albany, to make the first attack on air pollution by a major industrial state. A joint committee of the New York Assembly is putting the finishing touches on a bill which, if it is enacted, as seems more than likely, will inaugurate a state-wide program of eliminating and regulating air pollution.

There was some question recently whether New York City, which has a program of its own, should be brought under the state arrangements. But this was settled when Mayor Wagner of New York sent a representative to Albany to insist that the city be included.

The New York State plan envisions an 11-member board within the State Health Department whose job it will be to establish standards for air pollution and gradually enforce them according to a reasonable schedule of compliance.

The proposed law makes all due allowance for situations where research has not yet produced practical methods of controlling air contamination. In fact, part of the board's responsibilities will be to foster such research.

* * *

IT HAS BEEN suggested for a long time that Pennsylvania ought to consider making air pollution control a responsibility of the state government. In fact, bills to accomplish this have been introduced in the Assembly at Harrisburg. But so far they have not received serious consideration.

Yet Pennsylvania, where the Donora smog disaster of 1948 occurred, has first hand knowledge of the death-dealing potentialities of unregulated contamination of the air by industries. And the official studies made in the wake of that tragedy indicated that both state and federal legislation are called for.

We could have more hope that such legislation is on the way if we could detect in the local communities which are being blighted by industrial air pollution some sense of urgency about the problem. But even in Donora, where some 20 persons were actually killed by poisoned air, there has been hardly a semblance of public interest or official action.

* * *

HERE is another instance, it seems to us, where local government, by failing to measure up to its responsibilities to the people, is more or less abdicating in favor of state and national government. We need hardly wonder why the latter is taking such an unconscionable portion of the earnings of all of us.

But even if the municipalities were trying to do something to help themselves in this matter, it is still true that a really adequate attack on air pollution would need to be made on a state or regional front. As Mayor Wagner told the New York legislature, "soot - fall, fumes, smoke, fly ash and noxious gases are not respecters of political or geographic boundary lines".

It is too bad Pennsylvania must stand by while a neighboring state goes to work on a problem which is common to both. But we trust that when New York has set the example, Pennsylvania will somehow muster the gumption to follow it.

Another School Bill

PRESIDENT Eisenhower submitted to Congress this week a revised version of his proposals for federal aid to states and communities to assist them in providing new school buildings, which proposals the Congress failed to adopt at the last session. The President is asking that the program which he had previously requested to be accomplished in five years now be accomplished in four years.

As he did on the other occasion, Mr. Eisenhower presents this program as an "emergency" need of the nation. We are today short by 159,000 classrooms of the number required to give every American boy and girl a proper public school education. And the shortage grows by the hour.

The President reemphasizes his belief that education is a state and local problem, and his plan is carefully calculated to avoid federal interference in education. He would have federal participation confined to assistance in financing school construction, and he would distribute the aid in accordance with the need for new classrooms and the financial resources of the states and communities.

In these respects we think the Eisenhower program is definitely superior to that provided in a bill sponsored by Rep. Augustine B. Kelley, of Westmoreland County. Mr. Kelley's bill would distribute the federal funds to the states on a per capita basis.

But whatever form such a program may take, we hope Congress will not fumble the ball again. We hope particularly that it will not be sidetracked, as it was last year, by a dispute over racial segregation.

Senators Quiz Ambassador To Egypt

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Slavery in Saudi Arabia came in for tough criticism from Sen. Wayne Morse (D., Ore.) during a closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Ambassador Raymond A. Hare, U. S. envoy to Egypt, was on the witness stand, trying to defend U. S. policy toward Near East dictators.

Mr. Pearson

"Are these not totalitarian monarchies we are supporting in the Near East?" Morse asked, referring chiefly to King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

"No," replied the Ambassador. "If they are not totalitarian monarchies and if I got out in the street and criticized the government, what would happen?" pursued Morse.

"You'd get into trouble," admitted the Ambassador.

"You mean I'd go to jail."

The Ambassador laughed, tacitly agreed.

"And if I were a Baptist minister and started to convert people in Saudi Arabia?" asked Morse.

"You'd be in trouble," admitted the Ambassador.

"In other words there is no freedom of religion. Now suppose I was a pamphleteer," continued the relentless Senator from Oregon, "and tried to write what I wanted to write."

"You'd be in trouble," admitted Ambassador Hare.

"In other words, there is no freedom of the press," concluded Morse. "In brief, there is not one single protection under what we call the Bill of Rights."

No Russian Threat

"That's true," said the Ambassador, "but it's changing."

"How?"

"Even the lowliest person can see the King."

"There is nothing modern about that," remonstrated Morse. "In feudal days, even the lowliest serf could see his lord and master.

"Now what effect are the Russians having in this area?" Morse changed his tack.

Ambassador Hare reported that the Russians were flooding the Near East with literature, books and propaganda and were "selling" lots of arms.

"Selling arms?" interposed Sen. Williamm Fulbright of Arkansas.

"Yes."

"Don't you think we had better sell them, too, rather than give them away?"

Hare did not have a conclusive answer, and Senator Morese returned to the cross-examination. "You say the Russians are making great headway," he asked. "Do you see any impending threat on the part of Russia against the Arabian countries?"

There was a long pause. Finally Ambassador hare replied: "That will depend on future developments."

"I would like to have an answer to that question," pursued Morse. "Do you see any impending threat on the part of Russia against the Arabian countries?"

"No, not at the moment," replied the Ambassador, "but a lot of developments could come in the future."

"Yes," said Morse, "suppose we pour manpower and arms in there. Wouldn't that create a situation much more conducive to war?"

The Ambassador hesitated.

Bailing out Oil Companies

"Do you have any idea of the value of the oil in the Arabian countries?" asked Morse.

"No."

"A rough idea?"

"It's worth billions."

"Now why should American taxpayers be giving their dollars to the oil companies to help protect their investments?"

The Ambassador didn't have an answer. When Morse asked about slavery, however, the Ambassador explained that slavery in Saudi Arabia was not as bad as it sounded. When a child was born to a nobleman in Saudi Arabia, he said, a slave child was placed with him so they could grow up together.

"Mr. Hare," asked Morse, "is it not true that human beings are bought and sold in Saudi Arabia?"

Ambassador Hare admitted that it was true.

Right next door to Saudi Arabia is a strange contrast in what enlightened Arab leadership can do to prevent disease, poverty, and Communism. In the Sheikdom of Kuwait, a British protectorate, the Sheik gets about as much oil royalties as King Saud — approximately $260,000,000 annually. But instead of spending it largely on defense and on his royal household, Sheik Sir Abdullah al Salim al Subah has used his oil money so that every citizen benefits.

Today and Tomorrow—

The Revival of Europe

By WALTER LIPPMANN

In the backwash of the disaster in the Middle East there are many in Britain and France who have turned toward the idea that their best hope for the future lies in the unification of Europe. Mr. Macmillan and his new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Thornycroft, are both supporters of British participation in the project to establish a limited free trade area in Western Europe.

Mr. Lippmann

Within the free trade area, which Britain and the Scandinavian countries may join, there may soon be ready treaties to establish a still more intimate economic union consisting of France, West Germany, Italy and the three Low Countries. These treaties would create what is called a common market and would provide also for collaboration in the development of the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The French Prime Minister, M. Mollet, has long been an advocate of projects which go even further than that, and reach out towards certain tentative experiments in political confederation.

Support Growing

All these projects have been under negotiation for a considerable period of time But they have acquired very considerable popular and political support since the Suez crisis in the autumn. It had long been argued that while Western Europe was sub-divided into a large number of small national economics, none of those separate nations would be able to compete successfully with big countries like the United States and Russia where a very large market sustains mass production. This economic argument for greater European unity has been making some headway, although the resistance of the sheltered national vested interests is very powerful.

The autumn crisis over Suez has provided a powerful political argument — one which appeals to the pride and the patriotism of the European nations. What happened at Suez and in the United Nations provided a spectacular demonstration that in Europe, which was for so long the political center of the world, there are no longer any world powers. Europe is divided by the Iron Curtain, and Western Europe is sub-divided into a number of weak and national states, none of them on the modern scale of a great power. It was shown in the autumn that this divided and sub-divided Europe is unable, either by diplomacy or by force, to affirm and to defend its vital interests in the outer world.

Yet there are in Western Europe some 250,000,000 people more than there are in either the Soviet Union or the United States. Their level of education is the highest in the world. Were they give a modernized large scale economy, there is no mass of people anywhere who would surpass them in capacity to work.

It is plain that their economies are weak and their politicial influence is low because of their disunity. For what else can explain the fact that on the great international issues of life and death neither Europe as such nor any nation in Europe is treated as a principal power?

Germany Is Key

The question which troubles me does not come from any doubt that the case for greater unity is a good one, or that the projects for a common market, for a larger free trade area, and for atomic energy deserve encouragement and support by all men of good will. The question in my mind is whether Western Europe can be unified while Germany remains divided. Western Germany is a principal member of Western Europe. Yet Western Germany must look to the East, it must look to reunion with Eastern Germany, and that means it must look to a settlement with Poland and with the Soviet Union.

Until the German question is resolved, Western Europe alone cannot be politically stable. If Western Europe is not politically stable, it cannot have power and influence in world affairs. If this is correct, then what Western Europe needs in addition to a common market and the like is a common policy for a settlement with Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

It is not mere fantasy to imagine that Britain, which is withdrawing and reducing its global commitments, may find a new field for the exercise of its political genius in the unification of Europe through a settlement with Eastern Europe. If that were to happen, something great and good for all the world will come out of the self-examination through which Great Britain is now passing.

From Washington—

Senate Dragging Feet On Mideast Proposal

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

In appraising the prospects of congressional approval of President Eisenhower's Mid-East plan — economic aid and military defense for nations wishing it — two conflicting facts are now visible:

By every test of public opinion the American people are strongly for it.

Mr. Drummond

From the mood of the Senate hearings and from the timetable of coming floor debate, the attitude of a number of senators seems plainly captious, and Senate action shows every sign of being dilatory.

The decisive 24-to-2 indorsement of the resolution by the House Foreign Affairs Committee — a vote which presages favorable action by the House as a whole — undoubtedly reflects the public support which the President's proposal is getting.

Some politicians seem to feel that public support for the economic aid program has seriously fallen away. While they are disposed to go along with the warning to Moscow that overt Communist aggression would mean war with the United States, they want to cut off — or cut down drastically — the economic assistance which is the best guaranty against Communist subversion.

Public Favors Aid

This view is not borne out by most indices of public opinion. The country today, as evidenced by the latest Gallup poll, favors continuing econimic aid more strongly than a year ago. Support is more than two-to-one and is approximately the same among Republicans and Democrats. Furthermore, editorial indorsement section is high. Only a few newspapers oppose it.

But this level of public support and the responsiveness of the House apparently is not affecting the slow-down tactics of the Senate. Ultimate Senate approval is not doubted, but long delay is harmful and could be dangerous. The way things now look, it is likely to be another month before the Senate acts and it seems to me the responsibility — and the possible consequences — must rest squarely upon the Democratic leadership.

There is a standard by which excessive Senate delay can be measured. The "Truman Doctrine" of 1947 and the Greek-Turkish aid program comprise nearly an exact parallel to the "Eisenhower Doctrine" of 1957 and the proposed economic aid to the Middle East.

Mr. Truman put his appeal personally in a special message to the 80th Congress, which was more Republican than the present Congress is Democratic. He spoke on March 12 and the Senate acted within six weeks — on April 22 — appropriating $400,000,000 as part of the program. That is a reasonable time-table and Mr. Eisenhower is asking for no additional funds in the resolution he is proposing.

Politics Plays Part

It is easy to understand that some Democratic party leaders want to use the crisis anxieties in the Mid-East and the President's emergency proposal to show that Mr. Eisenhower was conveniently over-optimistic about the peace during the campaign.

There can be honest debate on that point, but surely this is not the time to re-fight last year's presidential campaign. Sen. William Fulbright, of Arkansas, second-ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee, is saying that Secretary Dulles must produce a "white paper" setting out in detail what went wrong in the Middle East from 1953 on before he can vote on the Eisenhower resolution.

To mean anything such a document would have to publish the classified and confidential communications of all the interested governments, and if we want to begin to repair the Atlantic alliance, that's no way to go about it. Such a course is ill-timed, ill-considered and could have only the most mischievous effects.

Undoubtedly there are some Democrats as well as some British statesmen (not Prime Minister Harold Macmillan) who for different reasons would like to get rid of Mr. Dulles as Secretary of State. The British would look upon it as an emotional recompense for the Suez fiasco, and the Democrats would cherish it as a booby prize for losing the election.

It isn't going to happen. Mr. Eisenhower is highly satisfied with his Secretary of State. Mr. Dulles is staying.

Fairly Spoken—

Love Isn't Enough For Happy Marriage

By MARGARET LATROBE

Maidens spurned by fickle lovers no longer shrink away in walled gardens, knitting afghans for nieces' hope chests, and sighing over a bundle of lavender-tied love letters. Girls today are too well-adjusted to spend their lives in half-mourning over the Great Love that didn't quite pan out. Rather than withdrawing in shaking heartbreak, never no more to love — they are likely to dust their palms of the errant swain, chirping — "What a phony! I'm glad to find out now, and good riddance!"

Mrs. Latrobe

In the "good old days" many the maid and many the man let life pass them by out of sheer romantic nonsense. True love dealt them the deal dirty. The one and only flew the coop. So their small and misguided minds kept them in emotional bondage and starvation the rest of their lives.

Many the novelist made a fast buck on this illusion of love. Young ladies — having been "jilted" — quite properly retired from further heart interest, which made it convenient for those left in the field. Many the poet sang of undying love, enhancing his prestige if not his purse. Poets, you know, aren't the financiers of this world. A rich and counterfeit aura of idealistic eye-wash surrounded our conception of "true love" — and broken hearts were all over the place.

No more. At least, not if the young people are well-grounded emotionally. Why, they even have check-lists instead of moonlight and roses, the better to calculate their chances of happiness in marriage. Instead of meeting each other in artificial situations scented with the pervasive fragrance of mystery and daffodils, today's engaged couples go tramping off together for some unadorned insight on what they are really like by daylight. Instead of keeping their family skeletons hid — out they trot into daylight, too. Possible mother-in-law problem? Religious differences? Financial responsibility? Kindred interests? Mutual hopes for children?

Doesn't sound much like that old-fashioned lightning bolt of love-at-first-sight, a two-day engagement, and off to the parson, does it? Many such fast courtships have turned out exceedingly well, but according to psychologists their success was accidental rather than inevitable. Unless these impetuous souls were busy with that check-list during their brief acquaintance, the probabilities of future happiness would be much slighter than had they taken time to learn what kind of people each really was.

Totting up areas of agreement will never guarantee a happy marriage. Knowing a man or woman 10 years won't either. But the odds in favor of thorough analysis and unromantic scrutiny before marriage, are too high to ignore. Added to that blessed spark of love, it's about as good a guarantee as one can find.

Still, engagements are sometimes broken. Hearts? I doubt it. Vanity may be wounded, humiliation and frustration may ensue. But they are fraudulent foundations on which to base a lasting alliance — which wouldn't last anyway. If "jilted," just be glad! You didn't lose what you really wanted — because you never had it to begin with. As for knitting, fine! But observe what one lost stitch causes — the whole dratted afghan unravels. In romance, knit one and purl two with sturdy yarn and you'll have something worth having, eh? Them's my sentiments.

The after-sunset vision of dark-eyed persons is better than that of light-eyed persons.

Patricia Galante Is Bride Of Daniel John Kozlowski

Patricia Galante and Daniel John Kozlowski were united in marriage in a ceremony solemnized at St. Cajetan R. C. Church on Saturday morning, Jan. 12, at 10 o'clock.

The lines of the double ring rites were ready by the Rev. Nunzio Pirulli, church pastor, before an altar arranged with ferns, palms and white flowers. The bridal party approached the altar down a crash lined aisle and family members were seated in pews marked with white satin bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Galente, 632 Braddock avenue and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kozlowski, 133 Steuben avenue, Pittsburgh.

Wears Lace

For her attire the bride selected a white gown styled with a mandarin collar and long pointed sleeves. The bodice was of Chantilly lace and the full skirt was fashioned of "I Do" taffeta and inserted with lace panels. It ended in a chapel length train. Her sheer veil fell from a lace pill box headpiece accented with sequins and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

The maid of honor was Joyce Swalin, who selected a poudre blue net gown with a scalloped overskirt. Her bouquet was of yellow carnations tied with yellow velvet streamers. She wore a blue feather headband with a net veil.

Bridesmaids were Marlene Frye and Adelene Galante, sister of the bride. They wore full length gowns of azalea pink net with full ruffled skirts and carried colonial bouquets of yellow carnations with matching streamers. Their headbands matched their gowns and were of feather and net.

Rosanne Urdenis, niece of the bride, as flower girl wore a blue dotted swiss and taffeta gown. White ruffles edged the dotted swiss skirt and she also carried yellow carnations. In her hair she wore a tiara of pearls twined with blue net.

Joseph Egan, of Pittsburgh, nephew of the bridegroom, was the best man and those serving as ushers were Frank Ornack and Anthony Galante, brother of the bride.

James Bolla, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Mothers Present

The mother of the bride attended the wedding wearing a light blue taffeta dress with black accessories and a yellow carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a rust and black dress with brown accessories and a yellow carnation corsage.

A wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents supplemented the ceremony and later there was a dinner at the Park Casino for the immediate families and close friends.

A reception was held for 400 relatives and friends in the Sons of Italy Hall in Monessen. Yellow, pink and white were the colors carried out in the decoration theme and a wedding cake centered the bridal table. The Harmonaires played the music for dancing.

Guests attended from Cleveland, O., Pittsburgh, Rankin and area towns.

Wedding Trip

When the couple left for a wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia the bride was traveling in a beige cashmere coat with brown leather and tweed accessories. Her dress was a yellow wool sheath.

The bride attended Monessen High School and was graduated in 1954. She also attended Douglas School of Business and is employed at Magura's Clothing Factory. Her husband is now stationed in North Carolina as a sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps. He was graduated from Langley High School in Pittsburgh.

The bride will remain at her parent's home until she joins her husband in the near future.

On Friday evening preceding the ceremony there was a rehearsal party held at the home of the bride's parents. There were refreshments served and the bride and groom each gave their attendants gifts.

Claims Late Wife As Tax Dependent

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Charles Wilson, 65, a retired Altoona widower, was sentenced Tuesday to 30 days in jail and fined $100 for claiming his deceased wife as a tax deduction. His wife died 20 years ago.

The sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Joseph P. Willson, who said:

"It's the first time I've had to sentence a man named Wilson. Too bad he apparently thinks it's alright to cheat Uncle Sam."

Purple was the first dyed color to be fixed on wool and linen.

SEVEN KILLED, NINE INJURED IN THIS BLAST — Seven killed, nine injured is the toll as firemen sift rubble where a two-story brick building housing an apartment and hardware store stood in Roselle, Ill. A violent explosion apparently caused by gas did the damage, which was estimated at $300,000.

Subways to Connect Capitol Hill

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP)—Perhaps before too long, congressmen, the press and the public can travel all over Capitol Hill without getting wet. For free, of course.

I recently spent a rain day with the Capitol underground—the only subway operating in Washington the shortest ride of his kind anywhere in the world.

The little cars run 700 feet northwest and return 700 feet southwest between the Senate end of the Capitol to the Senate office building. If right-thinking prevails, the subway eventually will be extended to include:

The new Senate office building now under construction.

The old and the new House office buildings and the very, very new one still in the blueprint stage.

The Library of Congress.

The Supreme Court.

Plus any other buildings which later may sprout in the vicinity.

House Has car-less subway

House members also have a "subway"—minus cars. A tunnel connects the House wing of the Capitol with the two House office buildings, but members have to walk because they never voted the money needed to finish the job.

The Senators' two little cars, carrying 18 passengers per run, scoot along at 12 miles an hour and are about as safe as your living room. That is unless you stick your feet or elbows out the open sides or take a header while the car is in motion.

Across the years since the cars started running in 1908 there have been only a few tumbles, none serious.

A few thousand of the taxpayer dollars recently were spent to install automatic slow-up devices on the sharp curves and toward the ends of the lines. This eliminates the possibility of human error on the part of the operators.

Officials in the Capitol architect's office say that if and when the expanded subway system gets moving, folks will be able to whiz along at between 25 and 30 miles an hour.

The system, they said, will have all the essentials necessary to make it as foolproof as possible.

Four operators now run the little cars in two working shifts. Each works five hours a day, unless the Senate runs overtime, which it sometimes does.

The subway has been known to make as many as 1,000 trips on a long day. Even at only 700 feet each way, that adds up to a lot of feet. But it saves an awful lot of shoe leather for senators, guests and footsore reporters.

The seats are far from plushy. They are made of hard, sturdy cane—varnished to a fault.

Jesse Williams, superintendent of the subway machine shop, spoke up for the operators on this point.

"A one and three-quarter minute ride doesn't wear out many fancy senatorial pants," he said. "But for the guys who have to sit still five hours a day and twist around at each end of the line—it's pretty hard on britches."

The Partheon at Athens, Greece, was completed in 438 B. C.

Baron Is Miffed at the Way Americans Misuse Language

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) — We have with us today Henry George Strauss, first Baron Conesford of Chelsea, a chap who has worked himself into a mighty miff over what "American pretentious illiteracy" is doing to the Queen's english.

Lord Conesford warned the Authors Club in London of "corruption, decay, and dissolution" threatening the language — a threat posed in large degree by the paucity of couth in the speech of Americans.

Our fashion, he says, is to use long words we don't understand and reject short ones that fit: "Under-privileged" instead of "poor". He assails our "horrible habit" of adding meaningless little words to verbs: "Face up to" for "face" and "visit with" for "visit."

Not Our Invention

Well, we might as well plead innocent right now to the charge of inventing the added little word. Let's turn to that "noblest monument of English prose", the King James Version of the Bible. Open it to page one, "The first book of Moses, called Genesis."

In Verse 16 we find: "And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night. . ."

All right. Very clean language. Now see Verse 18: "And to rule over the day and over the night."

Here, only two verses later, speaking of the same lights, the "meaningless little word" — "over"—has been added twice. This "horrible habit" began elsewhere than America. An Englishman wrote that passage shortly before 1611—although it must be admitted he was translating. Maybe Moses himself write it that way in the original Hebrew.

Examples Are Legion

The examples are legion. Flip over to Joshua 16:2—"And goeth out from Beth-El to Luz, and passeth along unto the borders of Archi." or Job 38:3—"Gird up now thy loins." Aren't the "out," "along," and "up" as cluttery as the "with" in "visit with"?

I submit that in 1600 there could hardly have been an American in there fouling up the Good Book. (Oops, there I go—please ignore the 'up." Matter of fact, cut out the "u" in snafu. Wonder if the English write it "snaf"?)

Take the great passage in Luke 2:9—"And the glory of the Lord shone round about them." Why the "about"? Why, indeed? In the Revised Standard Version (1952) (translated by Americans) it becomes:

"The glory of the Lord shone around them." With all deference to Lord Conesford, some of us prefer the first.

Agony Is Abated

However, we understand what he means about pretentious language. It was an Englishman named Macaulay who, at age four, replied to a lady's inquiry about his burned knee: "Madman, the agony is abated."

Clear thinking is needed, Conesford says. Well, we've had this fellow Abraham Lincoln write us a line: "Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation . . ." Why can't he say what he means—"87 years ago our fathers founded here a new nation." ". . . conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition . . ." Look, Mr. Lincoln—Abe, old man—your writing is too inflated; won't last a day. Listen a while to an Englishman, John Milton:

"Him the Almighty power hurled headlong flaming from the ethereal sky, with hideous ruin and combustion, down to bottomless perdition, there to dwell in adamantine chains and penal fire, who durst defy the omnipotent to arms."

Is it pretentiousness? Or grandeur? And so, for today, we say farewell, mother tongue, and may the good Lord Conesford bless and keep you.

Air Mechanics Threaten Strike

MIAMI (UP)—Some 1,000 National Air Lines mechanics have announced they will strike at noon Feb. 8 unless last-minute contract negotiations succeed.

The strike would close down the giant airline in the middle of the heavy winter tourist traffic and cost the Miami area alone an estimated $500,000 to $1,000,000 a day in revenue.

The strike date was posted Tuesday in a bulletin put out by District 145 of the International Assn. of Machinists.

Charge of Politics at Airport

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A Cleveland firm's efforts to bid on a parking concession at the Greater Pittsburgh Airport resulted today in charges business concessions at the big air terminal are going to political favorites.

Attorney Alexander Cooper, representing the firm Airport Parking of Cleveland, asked Allegheny County commissioners here to abandon what he termed a "spoils system" of letting concessions at the county-operated airport.

The Cleveland firm focused attention on what was revealed as a multi-million-dollar profit venture for airport merchants by attempting to bid on a parking concession now held by John T. Stabile.

Stabile, a Pittsburgh parking lot operator, is the brother of Nicholas Stabile, budget director of Allegheny County.

A county aviation department report, issued while Cooper was leveling charges of "behind-the-door" deals, showed that operators of drug stores, restaurants, a hotel, parking lots and other businesses with space at the airport grossed nearly $5 million in 1956.

The more than 30 concessions paid Allegheny County rentals and commissions of $837,000, leaving them with a gross of $3,905,000 before taxes, payroll and other expenses.

Cooper charged that John B. Sweeney, county aviation director, allowed most of the present concession agreements, negotiated in 1952, to go to friends and relatives of county officials. He criticized the system of allowing Sweeney to negotiate contracts privately and urged a system of sealed, competitive bids.

The Cleveland firm was squeezed out of the parking concession in the previous negotiations, Cooper said. The parking rights netted Stabile $96,000 in 1956.

U. S. Knew of Attack on Egypt

WASHINGTON (UP)— The United States had advance intelligence information on the Israeli-British-French attack against Egypt, administration officials disclosed today.

This information was available in Washington at a time when those three nations were either dodging questions or giving "misleading" answers when U.S. officials sought to stall or prevent any Middle East warfare.

Details of what the United States knew in advance about the Israeli-British - French attack may be brought out in the forthcoming Senate investigation of the administration's policy in the Middle East crisis.

Officials said the Senate hearings are sure to bring out details of a long string of warnings to the three nations by Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles against the attack on Egypt. Some of these warnings were sounded many weeks prior to the Egyptian action which began Oct. 29.

There is no evidence the United States was advised officially by Israel, Britain or France of their impending action. The White House and State Department have said the first news of the main events were received via news agency reports. But these events did not come as a complete surprise despite the refusal of the three Allies to say anything about them in advance to the United States.

The United Press is informed that a top secret report prepared by intelligence agencies was delivered to the White House about 24 hours prior to the Israeli attack of Oct. 29. This report, dated Oct. 28, is said to have made these three main points:

1. Israel will not attack Jordan. Earlier intelligence estimates indicated that Israel would strike against Jordan to seize territory west of the Jordan River.

2. Israel instead will attack Egypt.

3. France and Britain will attack in the Suez Canal area.

This intelligence information was "acted upon" by the government's intelligence advisory committee which includes the State Department, Joint Chiefs of Staff, Army, Navy, Air Force, Central Intelligence Agency, Atomic Energy Commission, and Federal Bureau of Investigation. This means all these agencies knew about the Allied plans as did the White House.

Frank McKosky Earned Great Respect

Anyone who reads this column knows of the high esteem in which we held Frank McKosky, former Monessen athletic director who died this week. There is no need to eulogize him. This reporter has lost a good friend. More importantly, the school and community have lost a most worthy citizen. He lived a useful life, and anyone who knew him is now richer for the experience . . . Army and Penn State have been football rivals on and off since 1899 but the Cadets will make their first appearance at Beaver Field on October 5 to open the Lions home campaign . . . St. Vincent basketball coach Dodo Canterna thinks at lot of his sophomore star Harry Folk, ex of Greensburg. Says Canterna: "All I have to do is tell Harry once and he carries on from there. And I don't have to worry about him in the classroom either . . . He's a straight A student."

Tomorrow's McKeesport at Duquesne basketball game has been sold out for weeks. If the host Dukes win, they'll pull into a first place tie with the undefeated Tigers. On the other hand, a McKeesport win will just about assure them the Section 6 crown . . . Monessen High coach Frank Janosik looked on the other night as Charleroi "mauled" a good Washington team with surprising ease. The Cougars hit on 50 per cent of their field goal attempts, making 16 of their 26 baskets on easy layups. It was an awesome display and Frank was obviously impressed.

Difference Between Monessen, Charleroi

Big difference between the Monessen and Charleroi High basketball teams this season is that Monessen is too small to win on bad nights while the Cougars are too big to lose . . . Elmo Natali, who earned his sports reputation as both a football and baseball star at Monessen High, then California Teachers, is now in the thick of the basketball business, too. Elmo coaches the Junior High team at Monongahela, then serves as the head scout for varsity boss Al Cree . . . Portage High, near Johnstown, has a 6-8 junior center named Leonard Chappell who's been averaging 31 points per game this season. The big fellow has also grabbed 167 rebounds in his first eight games. And just for the record, he's a good student.

* * *

The 12th annual American Rubberband Duckpin Bowling Congress national tournament will be held this March and April at Laurel Lanes in Uniontown. That bowling spot is operated by Jack Meir, former Monessen man . . . Incidentally most of the top notch city bowlers plan to enter. Babe Kroskie and Mary Palm have already teamed to bid for doubles honors in the women's division . . . Gene Gibson, former Latrobe High coach who is now scouting for Wake Forest, agrees that Charleroi's Myron Pottios is a sensational college prospect. However Gibson feels that Myron will be moved to a line spot once he hits college. "He's not fast enough for a back, but more than fast enough for a lineman," reasons Gibson.

* * *

Gordon Still Averaging 25 Points

James (Beanie) Gordon, Washington's High brilliant basketballer, is still averaging 25 points per game this season even though he stands a "mere" 5-10 . . . Who remembers back to the 1911-1913 era when Milt Eller was the marathon running champ of the valley. He's now living at the Grand Hotel . . . Myron Pottios, Charleroi's fine footballer, is still listening to a couple of Big Ten offers even though Notre Dame has made an all-out pitch for his services. The Irish also want Scott Twp.'s huge Nick Maravich . . . Obviously John (Dibby) DiBiaso and his crew of City League officials are doing a great job this season. There have been few camplaints. Enthuses League Secretary Bucky Lutes: "It is my opinion that the officiating has been of the highest caliber this season."

MONESSEN PREPS FOR BROWNSVILLE

Wide Open Race Predicted for GG Boxing Titles

A wide-open race for the titles is expected in the 12th annual Post-Gazette Dapper Dan Golden Gloves tournament, which begins in Pittsburgh February 14.

Twenty-four champions will be crowned in three classes, and the eight best will be selected for the Pittsburgh team which will fight in the Eastern Championships at New York in March.

Of the eight boxers who made up last year's team, five have turned pro, and one — Lightweight Tommy Schafer, is in the Marines. So the scramble for berths on the team should be red hot.

Last year's team won the first place Eastern trophy at New York, and produced such promising professionals as Heavyweight Johnny Harper of Steubenville, Ohio, Light Heavyweight Alonzo Johnson of Rankin, Pa., Middleweight Johnny Morris of Pittsburgh, Welterweight Gene Tippett of Pittsburgh, and Featherweight Walt Ingram of Steubenville.

Just for Fun

Of course, the Golden Gloves is not chiefly a training-ground for future pros. On the contrary, most of the amateurs in the tourney enter for the fun of it. They bring a unique enthusiasm, and that's why the tournament is jam-packed with action and laughs.

Mail orders from fans are being accepted by the Dapper Dan Club, Post-Gazette Building, Pittsburgh 30, Pa.

Ticket prices for the championship card at the Pitt Field House February 19 are $1.50, $3.25, and $4.25. Tickets for the four preliminary nights — February 11 through 14 — at the Southside Recreation Center, sell for $1.50 and $3.00.

Lane Impressive Against Ryff

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — Lightweight contender Kenny Lane, jubilant over his impressive second victory against Frankie Ryff in their return TV bout, offered $75,000 today for a shot at the title.

With his sixth-round TKO over Ryff providing his 11th straight win, the brown-haired southpaw from Muskegon, Mich., offered $75,000 for a defense by the victor in next month's Joey Brown-Bud Smith title fight at Miami Beach.

It was a logical offer because of Lane's number two ranking and because of the vast improvement he displayed against the blond New Yorker before 3,610 in Municipal Arena.

Ryff, weighing 139 pounds to Kenny's 139¼, was slashed so bloodily on the left brow that Referee Paddy Mills stopped the bout at 52 seconds of the sixth session. In their previous bout, Nov. 14 at Miami, Lane won a unanimous decision.

Dwyer to Compete In Millrose Games

NEW YORK (UP) — Fred Dwyer, a leading distance runner, definitely will compete in the golden jubilee Millrose A.A. Track and Field Meet, Feb. 9, but as yet is undecided whether he will run in the mile or two-mile event. Dwyer, of East Orange, N.J., won the Wanamaker Mile in 1953. Entered in this year's mile event are Ron Delany of Ireland and Villanova and Laszlo Tabori, self-exiled Hungarian four - minute miler.

Fuocos Nip Ozarks In Thriller, 44-43

Fuocos kept alive their playoff hopes last night by scoring a thrill-packed 44-43 win over the Ozarks in City Basketball League action which took an overtime period to decide.

In other games, the Yellow Jackets tripped the Cips, 42-32, and Big Five tightened its grip on third place by hammering S-L, 57-40.

Three City League games are scheduled tonight at the Junior High gym. Fuocos will meet the Yellow Jackets at 7; Cro-Ams will take on Big Five at 8 and Ozarks will tackle East End at 9.

Fuocos moved within a half-game of the first division with their win over the Ozarks. It was a hard-earned triumph, to put it mildly.

With a minute and a half to play in regulation time, Mike Trembush tied the score for the Fuocos at 41-41. And with three seconds to go, Mike Kelemen muffed two fouls which would have won the game in regulation time.

In the extra session, Jim Bricker emerged as the big star by driving through with a winning layup in the final five seconds.

Bricker also led the point-making with 16 Trembush chipped in with a dozen. For the Ozarks, George Lovich was high with 13. The steady Lovich had put the Ozarks ahead in the extra session with 45 seconds to go, but Bricker matched the feat to pull the game out.

Big Five kept rolling along handling S-L without too much trouble. Leroy Stover was the top scorer, tossing in 17 points.

For S-L, Tom Kovach was high with 22 tallies.

Big Five trailed most of the first half, but coach Joe Heath's boys went wild in the final period, piling up a 21-5 scoring edge.

The Jackets never trailed as they topped the Cips by ten points. Joe Rullo led the winners with 11 while Nick Mahalko had eight for the losers.

Harry Wismer Sues Owner Of Redskins

WASHINGTON (UP) — George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins professional football team, was accused today in a suit filed by sportscaster Harry Wismer of using $500,000 of the club's money "for his own personal benefit."

Wismer, who owns about 20 percent of the Redskins' stock, charged that Marshall improperly used for himself corporation funds at the rate of $50,000 a year for the past 10 years.

Wismer, who was removed from the club's board of directors several months ago after disputes with Marshall, asserted in the suit that Redskins corporation funds "have been improperly used...for the maintenance and upkeep of a private residence for George Preston Marshall, as well as for food, beverages, automobiles, and employment of chauffeurs, cooks, maids and other servants."

In Philadelphia, where he is attending the mid-winter meeting of the National Football League today, Marshall said, "I couldn't comment on any statements made by Wismer."

Greyhounds Appear At Brownie Floor Tomorrow Night

Monessen High's determined basketballers will invade Brownsville tomorrow. On the outcome depends the Greyhounds' status in the Section 5 race.

As matters stand now, the Hounds trail leading Charleroi by a game. That means they are still very much in the current chase even though the Cougars must be met later in the season at the tight Charleroi floor.

However to stay in contention the Hounds must win all of their remaining assignments. That looms as a difficult assignment.

The Brownsville test appears particularly difficult. In an earlier meeting, the two teams battled on even terms for three periods before Monessen pulled away in the closing moments to win 56-40.

Much Tougher

With the benefit of the home floor, the Brownies figure to be much tougher this time.

It is significant to note that Brownsville hasn't lost a game at home this season. All six losses have occurred on the road.

Brownsville's overall record stands at 9-6. Monessen owns a 10-6 slate for the year.

League - leading Charleroi will not be in action tomorrow. The remainder of the Section 5 card will show California at Bellmar and Donora at Monongahela.

After losing their first four league games, the Belmar boys suddenly caught fire to win two in a row. They also knocked off Scottdale in their most recent exhibition test.

Canes Clicking

Thus it would appear that the Canes are clicking at last and they just might have something to say yet about the Section 5 outcome.

In Section 10, Rostraver will resume its title bid at Dunbar. The Leps have a 4-2 record so far to rate a three-way tie for the lead.

Rostraver had little trouble beating Dunbar earlier in the season. However the Mules have improved since then and they even managed to upset favored Hurst to let the rest of the section know that they're no longer pushovers.

Derry Twp., the team favored to win the Section 10 title, will play host to Scottdale, while Ramsay will go to Hurst.

Over in Section 17, one game is on tap tonight. East Huntingdon will appear at Sewickley.

Big Game

Tomorrow the big game will show second place Irwin at first place Perryopolis.

Meanwhile West Newton, still clinging to flickering title hopes, will travel to South Huntingdon.

Junior High activity will resume today for several district quints.

In Section 2 Washington will go to Charleroi while in Section 3 Rostraver will play host to Fallowfield. The Little Leps are currently tied for the Section lead.

Tomorrow in Section 2, Monongahela will appear at Monessen and California will go to Donora.

In Section 3, Perryopolis will show at Carroll Twp. and Vernon will go to Marion.

NFL Resumes College Draft

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The National Football League resumed its draft of college players today but with one eye cocked on benefit proposals by the new NFL Players Assn., including a $5,000 minimum salary.

The draft, begun last November with the selection of a bonus choice and four players by each team, will be completed at the opening of the league's two-day, mid-year meeting. Each of the 12 member teams has 26 choices to go.

Thursday will see the club owners get down to business, with the recuests of the players association high on the agenda. A series of proposals set forth by the association, after representative Kyle Rote and Norm Van Brocklin met with Commissioner Bert Bell, sought a minimum salary for gridders on the NFL selection lists and a salary guarantee for injured players.

The players' group also suggested a shorter training period and training camp expenses, and expressed the belief professional football is best served by its current method of selecting college players, now under fire. The group further recommended retention of the option clause in player contracts.

Ricketts Sets Shooting Mark

Runs Free Throw String to 40 as Dukes Turns Back St. Francis, 71-67

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Duquesne's Dave Ricketts, a tight-lipped senior woh has played in the shadow of his All-America brother, Dick, said today he "felt cocky for the first time" in the wake of his record - breaking performance of 40 consecutive free throws.

The 6-2 senior from Pottstown, Pa., pumped in 10 fouls and nine field goals Wednesday to lead Duquesne to a 71-67 victory over St. Francis of Brooklyn.

His 10 straight from the charity line broke the national mark of 38 set earlier this season by Chet Forte of Columbia. It also shattered the Duquesne record of 31 established by Dave's older and more publicized brother, Dick, in the 1954 New York Holiday Festival Tournament.

Ricketts has a chance to extend his record when the Dukes take on Niagara here Monday.

Not "Too Nervous"

Dave said he wasn't "too nervous" in Wednesday night's game, but admitted "several misgivings."

"I almost blew it on my 37th free throw," he said. "The ball hit the side of the rim but bounced back through the hoop off the backboard. It couldn't have been closer."

Dave went into the game needing only two fouls to smash his brother's Duquesne record.

He was fouled upcourt by St. Francis' Les Yellin in the early minutes. Dave walked to the foul line, hesitated, then plodded to the bench and wiped his brow with a towel. He nodded at Duquesne Coach Dudey Moore, stepped up to the charity line and nonchalantly dropped in both tosses for a new school mark.

Felt "Cocky"

"Then, except for the 37th foul, it was easy," he said. "I wasn't worrying about setting a national record. My big worry was helping to beat St. Francis."

Ricketts indicated that breaking his brother's school record gave him more satisfaction than setting the national mark.

"I felt cocky for the first time in my life," he said.

Dave has taken the back seat to his brother in basketball and baseball, both in high school and college.

Dick, an all-around athlete, has been doubling with the St. Louis Cardinals' Allentown, Pa., farm club in the Eastern League and the Rochester Royals of the National Basketball Assn.

Dave may never surpass his brother's brilliance on the hardwood, but thinks he can do it on the diamond. He has been scouted by major league clubs and is conceded a good chance to make the grade as a catcher.

Williams Still Most Feared Hitter Today

By OSCAR FRALEY

TAMPA, Fla. (UP) — Mickey Mantle is baseball's new glamor boy but you can take it from the pitchers that Ted Williams still is the most feared hitter in the American League.

"I've talked to a lot of other pitchers," said one as the baseball clan began to gather for spring training. "Now I wouldn't want that Mantle bearing down on me, so don't use my name, but Williams has no exploitable weaknesses while you can quite often fool Mickey."

Strikeout statistics would seem to bear out this assertion.

Mantle last season fanned a total of 99 times. Williams, in only 14 less games, struck out but 39 times.

Master Mickey himself bemoans this swishing proclivity.

Gives Away Points

"Williams told me that I was giving away a lot of points on my batting average," Mantle admitted. "I've got to learn the strike zone a lot better."

There are even more statistics which would indicate why Williams is regarded by the pitchers as more of a menace.

Mantle had a great season last year as he smashed 52 home runs and batted .353. But it was his first "big" one.

Since coming up in 1951, Mantle's previous best average was .311 and his overall average up to 1956 was only .298 for his career. Williams, on the other hand, has never batted under .317. His .406 average in 1941 made him the last man to reach the .400 heights and his lifetime average to last season was .348.

Musial High Man In NL

Over in the National League, the men who have to toss it up there to the hitters still rate Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals as pitching enemy number one.

"Stan doesn't rank with Williams or Mantle for my money," asserted the pitcher, who currently does his chucking chores in the American League, "but even in his 15th year he was still twice as tough to fool as such hitters as Willie Mays or Eddie Mathews."

And the pitchers, who discuss the hitters as naturally as farmers discussing crops, over in the National League are rating Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves as "the next Musial."

"But he's got a long ways to go before he's a Williams, or even a Mantle," said the slinging spokesman.

No Major League Hockey in Sight For Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh will have to settle for an American Hockey League team when the city's new Municipal Auditorium is constructed.

Getting a franchise in the National Hockey League is out of the question.

John H Harris, who owns the Pittsburgh Hornets franchise in the American circuit, said Wednesday night that if the National Hockey League wanted to expand it would want two more teams to make it an eight-team league Cleveland would be the other logical choice.

But, Harris asked. "Where would you get the players?"

"The National League is having a tough enough time getting players for six teams. Two additional teams would mean 40 more players—and you can't find players of that caliber," he said.

Harris said that when the new civic auditorium is completed, perhaps in two years, Pittsburgh also will have a professional basketball team. Harris owns a franchise in the National Basketball Association.

The Hornets went out of business after last season when The Gardens was torn down.

Two Sweeps in Parlors Bowling

Mihalich blanked the Florists and Diethornes swept over the Ravens in Grand Parlors Bowling League action last night.

Tom Conti rolled a brilliant 287 to establish a new single game high for the season, topping the previous mark of 274 authored by Leo Lewitsky.

Scoring leaders were Tom Conti, 287-634; James Szabo, 195-557; Sage Salay, 234-556; Skeets Jones, 204-534; James Salay, 190-533; Charles Daugherty, 197-503.

Standings show Florists, 9-6; Diethornes, 9-6; Mihalich, 8-7.

NIT Shops for Teams to Fill 1957 Cage Field

NEW YORK (UP)— The National Invitation Tournament, once the nation's premier post-season basketball event, was shopping around today for "sleeper" teams to combat fierce competition from the NCAA championship.

West Virginia Tech's 100-point-per-game sharpshooters (16-1), Texas Southern's' Negro NAIA champions (19-1), unbeaten St. Peter's of New Jersey (12-0), Memphis State (15-3) and little Brandeis (13-2) were among the teams unofficially mentioned to jazz up the field for the 20th annual NIT.

The bulk of the 12-team field again will be the strong Eastern independents, including the three top metropolitan schools, Manhattan (9-4), St. John's (8-4) and Seton Hall (10-6).

Canisius (14-2), Syracuse (10-3), St. Joseph's of Philadelphia (11-3), Duquesne (10-5), Temple (9-5) and Lafayette (13-3) are other strong Eastern teams which the NIT will try to lure away from the NCAA tournament.

For intersectional appeal, NIT officials are anxious to corral Seattle with its 18-2 record. Two berths probably will be left open for the runnersup in the Skyline and Missouri Valley Conferences. That would give the field Brigham Young or Utah from the Rocky Mountains and Bradley, Wichita or St. Louis from the Midlands. Dayton, four times a runnerup in this tournament, also may be invited back despite its mediocre 9-7 record.

Rupp Has His Kentucky Cagers Back in Basketball Spotlight

By UNITED PRESS

For the 12th time in the last 14 years it seems that the Southeastern Conference basketball crown may turn out to be a Kentucky "derby."

Baron Adolph Rupp's Wildcats from the blue grass had to settle for second place a year ago in the SEC, but Wednesday night they went out front by a half-length in this year's race with an 84-53 triumph over Georgia.

Georgia was simply no match for Kentucky, falling behind 45-28 at halftime and struggling against the reserves throughout the second half.

Sophomore Johnny Cox led Kentucky scorers with 22 points as the Wildcats, ranked the nation's No. 3 team by the United Press Board of Coaches, gained their 14th victory in 17 starts.

Tar Heels In Tune-Up

North Carolina, the nation's No. 1 team, also saw action Wednesday night — but only in a "tune-up" 77-59 romp over little Western Carolina to extend its perfect record to 16-0. Lennie Rosenbluth paced the Tar Heels with 24 points.

Otherwise, the spotlight Wednesday night was on free throw shooting as Dave Ricketts of Duquesne established a new major college record of 40 straight. The mark will be threatened tonight when Jackie Murdock of Wake Forest, who has canned 37 in a row, goes out against Virginia.

Ricketts, brother of former Duquesne All-America Dick Ricketts, hit 10-for-10 on free throws Wednesday night in a 71-67 victory over St. Francis of Brooklyn and so his streak is still "alive" for possible additions when Duquesne plays again next Monday against Niagara.

Passes Forte's Mark

Ricketts, who had 28 points to take scoring honors for the game, thus passed the old major college mark of 38 straight free throws set earlier this season by Chet (The Jet) Forte of Columbia.

In other leading games Wednesday night: Connecticut extended its Yankee Conference perfect record to 3-0 and set a conference scoring record with a 124-92 victory over Maine; Bill Ebben of Detroit scored 30 points in a 91-81 victory over Houston in the Missouri Valley Conference;

Tulsa romped to a 72-59 win over Santa Barbara; Lehigh upset Penn State, 72-67; Army won over Boston U., 65-54; Temple ripped Navy, 70-58; Texas Tech nipped Baylor, 68-65; and Dayton nearly blew a nine-point lead before beating De Paul, 75-58.

Georgetown in Bowling Sweep

Georgetown blanked Fordham in St. Cajetan Bowling League action last night.

In other matches, St. Francis won a pair from Notre Dame and St. Vincent earned two from Duquesne.

Scoring leaders were Joe Gallo, 162-442; Armand Niccolai, 170-440; Patsy Spadafore, 157-372; Steve Harbody, 199-466; John DeLuca, 178-441; Joe Bafile, 200-481.

Standings show Georgetown, 7-2; St. Vincent, 6-3; Notre Dame, 5-4; Duquesne, 5-4; St. Francis, 3-6; Fordham, 1-8.

Close Scores in Hearth League

All matches in the Open Hearth Bowling League ended in close scores last night.

Weddells won two from Maykovich, Van Marters took a pair from the Balmers and Minadris topped Whitehouse twice.

Best scorers were Joe Salay, 229-585; John Fayer, 205-523; Mike Kotora, 203-531; Joe DeMarco, 217-557; John Zdilla, 211-537; Nick Cullen, 200-537; and Sam Havirlak, 215-564.

Standings show Maykovich, 8-4; Weddell, 8-4; Minardi, 8-4; Van Marter, 5-7; Balmer, 4-8; Whitehouse, 3-9.

Mantle, Yanks Settle Down to Serious Talks

By UNITED PRESS

Mickey Mantle and Yankee General Manager George Weiss, having dispensed with the preliminaries, settle down to brass tacks today and if the site of their salary talk is a factor, the young slugger is a $60,000 cinch to get what he's asking.

Weiss and Yankee co-owner Del Webb will be among those present when Mantle is honored as "Man of the Year" by Sport Magazine today. Weiss has indicated he will begin "heavy negotiations."

Each speaker at the ceremony will get up and praise Mickey to the sky. Then it will be Weiss' turn to speak about Mantle's baseball virtues. What can he possibly say?—"the bum can't hit a curve ball."

Mantle stacks up as the Yankees' biggest financial headache but two more of their players who aren't fixing to budge until they're offered more money are Don (perfect Game) Larsen and Bob Grim.

Yanks Sign Two

Latest Yankee players to sign were shortstop Gil McDougald and first baseman Joe Collins, each of whom agreed to terms Wednesday after receiving raises.

The Yankees, however, aren't the only club with salary problems.

Southpaw Warren Spahn and outfielder Hank Aaron both are asking for more money from the Milwaukee Braves. Spahn, a 20-game winner last year, left Milwaukee for his home in Hartshorne, Okla., Wednesday after explaining he got "nowhere" in his salary discussions.

The Detroit Tigers admit they "haven't heard a word" from southpaw Billy Hoeft, another 20-game winner, and Cleveland General Manager Hank Greenberg failed in his effort to sign Early Wynn, still another member of the 20-victory circle.

Service Romps In Welders League

Martin Service blanked Lincoln and Williams took a pair from American Torch in Welders League bowling last night.

Scoring leaders were Bill Brewer, 148-376; John Dacko, 187-459; Joe Lenio, 200-446; Bill Kimmell, 173-406.

Standings show Williams, 10-5; American Torch, 8-7; Lincoln, 6-9; Martin Service, 6-9.

Adults As Well As Children Require Milk

Most people take for granted that the milk supply is pasteurized. For this reason, there is seldom any discussion nowadays in regard to the protection from transmittible diseases that the process supplies. Most large cities have passed laws whereby all market milk must be pasteurized.

Years ago, certain arguments were presented to prevent the passage of such laws, but experience has shown that outbreaks of typhoid fever, diphtheria and other diseases are now rare. The standards for sanitary handling of milk at the farms and dairies are enforced. It is true that certain vitamins are reduced, but these are easily supplied by other foods.

Flavor is very slightly changed, if at all, by pasteurization through modern methods. Only the most sensitive palate, and that of a person who has become accustomed to the taste of raw milk, can distinguish any difference. Even babies digest this type of milk, and sometimes better than raw milk.

The cost of pasteurization is but a fraction of a cent a quart. This is a small price to pay for health protection. Adults as well as children should continue to include milk in their diet, for drinking or for use in cooking. It is difficult to procure a good calcium supply without the use of milk.

VEGETABLE CHOWDER

4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 medium onion, sliced
3 cups mixed diced vegetables (potatoes, celery, carrots)
2 cups boiling water
2 cups milk
Salt
Pepper

Melt butter or margarine, add onion, and cook 3 minutes. Add vegetables and cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly over low heat. Add water, cover, and cook until vegetables are tender. Stir in milk slowly and heat. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Yield: 6 servings.

SPANISH CREAM

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 cups milk, scalded
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1-3 cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Soften gelatine in cold water about 5 minutes. Dissolve in scalded milk. Combine slightly beaten egg yolks, sugar and salt, and slowly stir in the hot mixture over hot water, stirring until slightly thickened, about 5 minutes. Cool, and when mixture begins to set, add vanilla extract and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour in serving dish and chill until set. Serve with crushed fruit or plain or whipped cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Blues Singer Is Resting Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Negro blues singer Ella Fitzgerald was reported "resting comfortably" today in New York Hospital.

Miss Fitzgerad underwent a 75-minute operation Wednesday for an "abscess in the region of the appendix." A hospital spokesman said the appendix was not removed.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

VEGETABLE FANCIERS can satisfy their longings, even in midwinter, with the large variety of fresh produce now in market.

Fresh Vegetables Are Now Available All Year Long

Even in the frigid weather that has been prevalent throughout the country, markets have continued to be pretty well stocked with a large variety of vegetables — most of them from warmer climates. Our choice is limited only by the fatness of our pocketbook.

Edith Barber

We may look with longing upon that fresh asparagus, which is naturally rather expensive, or upon fresh tomatoes, whose prices vary, as crops in the various sections of the South and West become abundant or less so. Often, our choice will be guided principally by cost.

Generally, we find cabbage, celery, and carrots in the low cost group. The former has the double advantage of being of service to our table in both raw and cooked form. Cole slaw is one of the most popular of salads. When properly cooked, cabbage, in my opinion, outranks the most stylist members of the family, such as cauliflower and broccoli. It cannot compete with them in appearance, but the flavor is delicious.

My favorite method of serving cooked, shredded cabbage is to dress it very simply with cream and to season it with a big of nutmeg as well as with salt and pepper. It may be given a more attractive appearance by sprinkling with paprika or garnishing with green pepper or pimiento when served.

MODERN CABBAGE

Remove outer leaves and shred cabbage. Cook, tightly covered, in small amount of salted water or, uncovered, in large amount of boiling salted water 5 to 10 minutes, until tender. Drain, and dress with butter, rich milk, cream, or cheese sauce, and season to taste with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Allow ¼ pound per serving.

HUNGARIAN CABBAGE

Prepare cabbage according to directions for modern cabbage. For 3 cups boiled cabbage, add ½ cup sour cream and 1 teaspoon caraway seeds. Heat and serve. Yield: 6 servings.

The eagle owl is a name given most often in Europe to the great horned owl.

Homemade Soups Replaced by Canned Variety

"Gone with the years is that old soup kettle that stood on the back of the wood stove," according to the New York State Extension Service. The suggesstion is made, however, that bones remaining from a roast can still be put to good use as a basis for a good homemade soup.

Attention was called to the fact that canned soups now come in such great varieties and under many brands. The condensed soups are the most popular, and deservedly so. Of these, tomato soup accounts for one-third of the output. It is difficult to produce as good a homemade soup as is supplied by some brands of tomato soup.

It should be mentioned again that canned soups can be given an original touch by a bit of extra seasoning or by topping with sour cream or with herb-flavored croutons or, in some cases, with grated cheese.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

1½ cups split peas
1 smoked ham bone
½ cup diced carrot
2 celery stalks, diced
2 medium-sized onions, sliced
8 peppercorns
2 bay leaves
6 cups boiling water
½ cup top milk (about)
¾ teaspoon sugar
Salt
Pepper

Put peas with ham bone vegetables, seasonings, and water in saucepan. Cover and simmer over low heat until peas are soft, about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Force through a sieve. Add enough milk to give desired consistency. Add sugar, and season with salt and pepper if necessary. Reheat and serve. Yield: 6 generous servings.

Note: If desired, use bacon ends or salt pork in place of the ham bone.

POTAGE MONGOLE

In recipe for split pea soup, substitute 4 cups canned tomatoes for an equal amount of the boiling water. Replace top milk with 1 cup stock or consomme.

Farmers Caught In Pinch

WASHINGTON (UP)—The cost-price squeeze gripped farmers a trifle more in the month ended Jan. 15, according to the Agriculture Department's monthly farm price report Wednesday.

Prices farmers received for crops and livestock rose four-tenths of one per cent for the month. At the same time, the cost of things the farmer must buy rose two-thirds of one per cent. This brought the index of prices paid by farmers to an all-time high of 292 per cent of the 1910-14 base period.

The department noted that "although the parity index (of prices paid by farmers) increased somewhat more than farm product prices, the parity ratio remained at 82," the same as for December. The parity ratio in January, 1956, was 80.

The department said farmers got "substantial" price increases for meat animals plus smaller increases for fruit and grain crops. This more than offset lower prices for commercial vegetables, eggs, dairy products, and cotton.

Higher Prices

The index of prices received stood at 238 per cent of the base period. This compares with 277 per cent in mid-December and is 5.3 per cent above the index of 226 per cent for mid-January, 1956.

About half the advance in the index of prices paid resulted from higher commodity prices, the department said. The remainder resulted from the continued advance in taxes on farm real estate, interest on farm mortgages, and farm wage rates. The January parity index of 292 per cent was four per cent higher than the index in January, 1956.

Average hog prices for the month were $17.30 per hundredweight. This compares with $16.20 for mid-December and $10.90 for mid-January a year ago. Average beef cattle prices were $14.90 per hundredweight, compared with $14.10 in mid-December and $13.90 in mid-January, 1956.

The department said increases in prices of feeder livestock, motor supplies, and items bought for household operation were the principal factors responsible for the increase in the index of prices paid by farmers.

Four Pittsburgh Men Charged in Insurance Fraud

PITTSBURGH (UP)— Four Pittsburgh men were charged today with defrauding an Indiana insurance firm of nearly $90,000 in fake automobile damage claims.

The suspects are John F. Kelly, local branch office manager for Emmco Insurance Co., South Bend, Ind.; company adjuster Raymond D. Hertzog, 53, and Leonard Sablowsky, 42, and Abraham Shrinsky, 44, operators of Mason's Garage here.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Hubert Teitelbaum said that from Feb. 19, 1953, to Nov. 30, 1956, the Emmco firm paid Mason's Garage $272,617, an estimated one third of which was for allegedly false or inflated claims.

Postal inspectors charged the four men with using the mails to defraud.

Verses of the Bible were often glazed on ceramic tiles in England during the Middle Ages.

HIS LORDSHIP IN FAMILIAR POSE — Daily Independent Photographer John Hurrianko snapped this excellent picture of Earl (Clement) Attlee when the former prime minister of Great Britain was in the district recently. Attlee and his pipe are inseparable. In fact, he gave a hint that he prefers his pipe to a spot of tea. The latter, however, ranks second on his enjoyment list.

Senate Expected to Modify Ike Doctrine; Bill Passed by House

WASHINGTON (UP) — Informed Senate sources predicted today that only a modified version of the Eisenhower Doctrine would pass the Senate.

However, the sources said the modified version would remain acceptable to the administration.

The House Wednesday overwhelmingly approved the Doctrine authorizing President Eisenhower to use force if nece. ary and economic aid to protect the Middle East from Red aggression.

It cleared the House by a vote of 355 to 61 only a day after reaching the House floor. The party division on the vote: 188 Democrats and 167 Republicans for; 35 Democrats and 26 Republicans against.

There were indications that getting even a modified version through the Senate would take considerably more time.

That won't make the administration happy. It has been urging speed.

Other developments:

Immigration— President Eisenhower sent Congress a special message on immigration. It was expected to ask that thousands more Hungarian refugees and refugees from other Iron Curtain countries be admitted to the United States. The President also was expected to call for liberalization of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act—basic immigration law of the land.

Racketeering— Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) said a Senate investigation of labor racketeering will help organized labor "clean house." Ives is the leading candidate mentioned for vice chairman of the committee. It is expected to hold its first organization meeting soon, probably this week.

Uniforms— The Senate Investigating subcommittee planned to look further into the bookkeeping system of a uniform maker. The group is trying to determine if petty cash funds of Madison Park Clothes, Paterson, N. J., were used to bribe government inspectors. Five firms were cut off Wednesday from further Army contracts as a result of the inquiry.

Investigations— The Senate has approved about $2.8 million for investigations this year. Largest single amount voted — $350,000— went to a new special committee to investigate labor racketeering. The Commerce Committee got $275,000 for an investigation of gas and oil price increases.

Wylie Relocation

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission will hold further hearings in Pittsburgh Feb. 18-19 on the city's proposed relocation of Wylie Ave. in connection with construction of the crosstown boulevard.

Ike Still Wants Tito To Visit United States

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department still wants Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito to visit the United States despite protests from Congress and hints that Tito himself may be growing cool to the idea.

Diplomatic officials passed this word today, although the State Department still maintained an official silence on efforts to arrange the visit.

Tito, if he eventually does come to the United States, would be the first head of a Communist nation to do so. Reports that he might pay an official call on President Eisenhower have stirred outcries from Congress, Catholic groups and others.

Mr. Eisenhower showed concern at his news conference Wednesday over the growing objections to visits by foreign leaders who are not exactly close friends of the United States or who are unpopular with certain segments of the population.

The President emphasized that, in the interests of peace, "you have got to meet face to face the people with whom you disagree at times to determine whether or not there is a way of working out differences and reaching a better understanding."

He said the mere meeting with such a man "does not necessarily imply any approval" of his policies. And the President deplored "any discourtesy" the U.S. people might show to such foreign visitors.

This was a reference to the snub New York City and state officials gave to visiting King Saud of Saudi Arabia when he reached this country Monday.

Wants Voters to OK Fluoridation

HARRISBURG (UP)—Legislation introduced in the state Senate Tuesday would require municipalities to receive the approval of their voters before permitting the fluoridation of their water supplies.

The bill of Sen. Edward J. Kessler (R-Lancaster) would require a referendum on the subject of fluoridation upon petition by 2 per cent of the electorate.

The bill would also require that the municipality obtain a permit from the state Health Department setting the manner and amount of fluoride to be used in the treatment.

Aged Waynesburg Woman Is Dead

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP)—Mrs Gertrude S. Kyle, 84, who helped found the Greene County Chapter of the American Red Cross and several women's organizations, died at her home Wednesday of a heart attack.

A native of Sinnemahoning, Clinton County, she resided in Waynesburg since 1900.

Her late husband, William J. Kyle, was a prominent local attorney. Her four sons, who survive, also are attorneys. They are William J. Jr. and Emory, both of Pittsburgh, and Charles D. and Richard S., both of New York City.

Burial will be at Highland Cemetery, Lock Haven, Saturday.

Navy Ruling Must Be Wrong

PORTLAND, Me. (UP) — The Navy is studying a miscarriage of administrative justice which discharged a healthy male sailor by reason of "pregnancy."

The error turned up when the sailor, whom the Navy flatly refuses to name, attempted to reenlist. The records of his previous enlistment plaining show the reason for his "honorable" discharge as "pregnancy."

But the Navy doctor who examined the prospective enlistee said the reason has to be wrong. Lt Clyde Catts of Ripley, Tenn., said he could find no evidence of pregnancy when he gave the sailor a thorough pre-enlistment checkup. Instead he described the sailor as a perfectly healthy male in every respect.

Kathy Sharrer President of Scout Troop

Troop 43, Fayette City Girl Scouts held an election of officers Tuesday evening. Kathy Sharrer was elected president; Georgia Arrow, vice president; Donna Traversari, secretary and Nancy Yates, treasurer.

Following the election the group learned scouting songs which they plan to sing at the annual Mother-Daughter banquet to be held in St. Edward Catholic Church on Tuesday, Feb. 26. Song leaders were Grace Hough, Suzanne Cramer and Francine Gill, all members of the senior troop.

Plans for the following weeks include an invitation to a grab-bag party to be given by Troop 45 on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5; working on their arts and crafts merit badges, and selling of Easter Seals on Saturday, April 20 for the benefit of crippled children.

Mrs. Thurman Bailey, leader of the Troop, reminded the girls their donations to the Juliet Lowe Fund were due on Tuesday.

Janice Myers in Children's Hospital

Janice Myers, three and a half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Myers, Connellsville street, Fayette City, is a patient in the Children's Hospital, Pittsburgh.

The child is undergoing observation and treatment.

School Officials Meet with Council on Bus Discussion

Representatives from the Belimarette School District discussed School bus travel at the Fayette City Borough Council meeting Wednesday morning in the council rooms of the borough building.

Robert Van Bremen, school superintendent; Bap Manzini, James Thrasher, principal of the Fayette City School; Steve Vesely, with whom the district has the bus contract, and James Hamer, member of the board, presented the problems concerning parking, routes and loading and unloading school children and the best procedure for safety measures.

It was agreed that the bus bringing children from Brownstown would discontinue making the sharp turn where Connellsville and Fourth streets intersect. In the future the bus will make the loop from Connellsville street, along Fording to Second to Market and to Fourth, stopping at the school house for boarding or unloading.

Vesely stated that the busses would make only scheduled stops as a safety measure. Council in turn has promised to enforce all existing traffic laws, especially in reference to cars being parked in no parking zones so that buses can make the narrow turns with greater ease.

John Canigiani, president of Council, stated that council was happy to cooperate in any way and that if future problems should arise it would be glad to listen and act toward the best solution.

The regular meeting then continued with the reading and approval of the financial report. Balances include: General Fund, $470.04; parking meter fund, $308.14; street construction fund, $2,236.98; sinking fund, $151.26; street lighting fund, $1,384.75 and state fund, $1,916.36.

An ordinance combining the office of the borough secretary and treasurer and to be held by the present secretary, Edward Shook, was read. This ordinance, as all others may be viewed at the Shook home upon request.

An ordinance referring to the posting of a bond by utility companies before breaking up a sidewalk or paved street was read. Final action will be taken at the next meeting of council.

Council voted to join the Washington County Borough Association and ordered dues of $10 for the year 1957 be paid.

Two other visitors at council were recognized. Colonel Lear, a representative of the federal government and Mr. Grove, a representative of the state highway development program had been on an inspection tour of the reconstruction work done by the borough on a wall and road in Johnson's Hollow.

The damage was done to this area by flood waters last year that also took the lives of three persons. Colonel Lear expressed his satisfaction and assured council that remuneration would be made. The work involved an outlay of slightly more than $600.

Burgess Howard Opfar then turned over to the treasurer the sum of $287.50: parking permit, $99; parking violations, $23.50 and juke box and pin ball licenses, $122.50.

Canigiani stated that County Commissioners had assured him that County aid would be given for resurfacing or rebuilding of not less than 500 ft. and not more than 1000 feet this year. This will be discussed at the February meeting of council.

The program will tell facts about each of the wars in which our nation has been involved since the war for Independence in 1776. A narrator will tell the stories and a chorus of 14 children will provide the patriotic numbers in song.

Victory Mine Inspected by Federal Bureau

A coal-inc inspection report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines pointedly urges rock-dusting of mine surfaces that are not definitely wet in the Victory mine at Belle Vernon.

The inspector also recommended suitable preshift examinations for gas and other hazards and proposed incombustible stoppings along the main haulage road and proper guards for each approach to the mine fan.

He further recommended that explosives be stored properly underground, machinery both on the surface and in the mine be guarded adequately, electric power wires be suspended from or on well-installed insulators, and that the emergency escapeway be properly maintained free from fallen roof material and standing water.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Lewis Atkinson who died seven years ago today, January 31, 1950.
The years may wipe out many things
But this shall wipe out never
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
We think of him in silence,
His name we oft recall
But there's nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall
Just when his life was brightest
Just when his hopes were best,
God called him from among us
To his home of eternal rest
Sadly missed by mother, Mrs. Eleanor Atkinson, and Family

In loving memory of our dear brother, Lewis Atkinson, who died seven years ago today, January 31, 1950
From this world of trouble and sorrow,
To the Land of Peace and Rest.
God has taken our beloved brother,
Where he has found eternal rest.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near,
We who loved him, sadly miss him
As it dawns another year
Sadly missed by Phyllis Roucroft and Elva Kratt

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Dora Fannie Dalfonso, who died 19 years ago today, January 31, 1938.
Darling loved one, how we miss you,
No one will ever know,
Of the heartaches and sorrows,
As the days come and go
You left with us a memory
Which clings around your name.
Just how brave and true you were
Until this day you died.
The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love we hold for you, dear one,
Will never fade awayy.
We love you more and always,
And miss you more each day.
Your name is always mentioned
In many, many a way.
Sadly missed by Mother and Father, Mr. and Mrs. Esaia Dalfonso, and Brothers and Sisters

Slaying Suspect Says Confession Was Forced

CHICAGO (UP)—A skid row dishwasher who repudiated his confession in the murder of two teen-aged sisters sought freedom today on charges he was beaten into admitting the slayings.

Police followed up new leads indicating the girls may have been picked up after attending a movie on the night they disappeared and killed about an hour later.

Bennie (the Dishwasher) Bedell, 20, a husky illiterate, retracted his signed confession Wednesday at a habeas corpus hearing before Chief Justice Wilbert F. Crowley in criminal court. Bedwell's attorney, David E. Bradshaw, said he will press for his client's release on bail when the hearing resumes this afternoon on grounds the confession is invalid.

Faces Murder Hearing

Bedwell also faced a routine hearing on murder charges placed against him. The hearing, in Bedford police court, is expected to be continued automatically.

Bedwell testified he was beaten and cowed into admitting he and a companion slugged Barbara Grimes, 15, and her sister, Patricia, 13, and dumped them into a ditch to freeze the night of Jan. 13. The bodies were found Jan. 17.

Sheriff Joseph Lohman, who announced Bedwell's 14-page confession Sunday, denied the skid row romeo was forced to confess. "He never was beaten or bullied," Lohman said. "Nothing like that ever happened."

Bedwell said sheriff's police slugged and bewildered him during three days of gruelling questioning and lie detector tests.

"I was so upset that I didn't know what was going on and still don't," Bedwell, a Paris, Tenn., native, drawled.

Bill to Curb Double Jobs

HARRISBURG (UP) — Two measures to reduce possible "conflicts of interest" in state government have been introduced in the House of Representatives.

One proposal would prohibit an attorney employed by the Commonwealth from representing or using another client who is doing business with the state. The measure provides automatic dismissal for the lawyers who violate the order and specifies that they could never hold another position with the state.

The other legislation would not allow a state senator or representative to hold any city, county, borough or township appointed office while serving his elected term. Both bills were introduced Tuesday.
